BERMUDA—ISLE OF SOFT WINDS AND CENSORSHIP

Reporter Tells of War's Changes.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lying athwart blue water trade routes, 666 miles southeast of New York, this little cluster of coral isles houses the biggest censorship organization in the British colonies, a strategic convoy base, and his majesty's fleet headquarters for the North Atlantic. It is here the United States shortly will establish an army and navy defense base.

First Hand Information.

To see first hand what is happening in—and to—Bermuda, this correspondent recently spent 10 days there. What was gleaned on war conditions and the entry of the Americans into this island paradise will be told in a series of stories written in New York away from the heavy hand of censorship.

Before I left Bermuda, however, the local censors went thru my notes, maps, and other material, deleting here and there a few scraps of specific information. In keeping with a gentleman's agreement there will be no mention of data deemed helpful to Britain's enemy, such as names of ships, their departures, number of troops, and their movements.

Bermuda covers only 19 square miles and has a normal population of 32,000. There are 150 islands in the colony. Geologists believe the islands are a succession of peaks of a submerged mountain upon which myriads of coral insects have been building.

No Seat on Clipper Plane.

Because a seat was unavailable on Pan-American's trans-Atlantic Clipper from New York or the Bermuda Clipper from Baltimore, Md., the trip was made by boat. Pan-American, the only air line operating from the United States to Europe, carts a human being across the ocean for $425 but prefers to carry the weight in mail because mail equivalent in poundage to an average man nets in the neighborhood of $1,000.

Thru the porthole of the cabin in the Santa Paula of the Grace Line as she glided along in crystal clear water toward St. George's harbor, a convoy could be seen making up off Murray's anchorage. These vessels getting set for the dash to England wore the conventional camouflage war paint, hulls in slate gray and topsides in dull orange.

This was the first glimpse of the war cloud hanging over the subtropical island kingdom. A Clipper passenger is deprived of that view because curtains on the big flying boats are tightly closed to prevent observation of harbor fortifications.

Scan Identification Cards.

Immigration officials came aboard and closely questioned travelers who were not of British or American citizenship. They scanned the identification cards issued by the British consulate in New York. The cards took the place of passports two months ago when Bermudians pleaded with British authorities to relax restrictions which were hurting the tourist trade.

Passengers were warned against taking British money into the colony, where the pound is artificially stabilized at four American dollars.

In New York City British pounds may be obtained for as low as $1.50 apiece. It is a purely speculative traffic and is called the "black market" by British officials. Money brokers in the Wall street vicinity, representatives of steamship companies, and tourists' agencies participate in it. There is no governmental control. People are gambling that the pound will rise after the war.

The Customs Inspection.

British officials in Bermuda explained that they halted the importation of British money after the German invasion of the Low Countries. They feared the Germans would take the pounds they seized and attempt to dump the money elsewhere in the world, thus ruining the sterling market.

On the docks of St. George's harbor customs men pawed thru the baggage. An official charged the reporter $1 duty to bring in a dilapidated portable typewriter over

BRITISH PARTY OF 78 REACHES PERU TO BOOST TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 19.—The arrival of Lord Willingdon as head of a British trade mission now completing a tour of South America coincides with the presence here of a small but important Japanese trade mission which is en route to Chile.

The British mission, which numbers some 15 delegates, with a retinue, including the delegates' wives, secretaries, translators, and servants, totaling 78 persons, will remain here until Jan. 25.

While 1940 imports from the United Kingdom show an increase over 1939 with little interruption of shipments, the value of exports to Britain has fallen heavily,

Brooks Warns U.S. Is Heading Right Into War

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—In a debate on the National Radio Forum tonight on the Roosevelt war powers bill, Senator Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] pronounced the whole Roosevelt foreign policy one that is bound to "lead directly into war." The steps so far taken, he said, are the following:

Senator Brooks.

"First: Changing our neutrality law which allows us to sell arms for cash-and-carry;

"Second: Advocating all aid 'short of war';

"Third: Advocating selling, regardless of cash;

"Fourth: Dropping all thought of 'short of war';

"Fifth: Passing this bill, which abdicates congressional authority, supersedes existing laws, and grants full authority to one man to create, use, or dispose of all elements of our national defense as he alone sees fit;

"Sixth: Authorizing the performance of acts which will create incidents that will make our active participation in the war a certainty."

"Leap Into Dictatorship."

The pending measure, said the senator, is not a "lease-lend bill" but a "take-away-for-keeps bill," designed to "take away the responsibilities of congress and place them in the hands of forces that for eight years have tried constantly, thru various other means, to centralize these powers in single hands.

"It is a leap into dictatorship, and a double time march into fighting, shooting participation in another European war.

"Overwhelming public opinion is for aiding England 'short of war.' Overwhelming public opinion does not favor our entry into the war unless or until we are attacked. And, an overwhelming majority of the American people does not wish to send our ships, flying American flags, manned by men in the United States navy, into the war zone where they will invite attack."

Declares Powers Not Needed.

Brooks asserted that this bill is not needed to aid Great Britain or expand our national defense.

"The chief executive," the senator argued, "now has authority to produce material of war as fast as is humanly possible. Our problem is production; production of materials

THREAT OF WAR CASTS PALL ON INAUGURATION

Throngs Jam Capital for Ceremonies.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—With the country facing the danger of involvement in foreign war the most momentous inauguration of a President in generations will take place at the capitol tomorrow noon.

President Roosevelt.

For the first time in our history a man will enter upon a third term in the White House when President Roosevelt takes the oath of office administered by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Not since Woodrow Wilson's second inauguration 24 years ago has the United States been so close to war. Not since Abraham Lincoln's first inauguration in 1861 on the eve of the civil war has a President's inaugural address been awaited by the country and by the world at large with so much suspense.

Look for More War Talk.

Altho Mr. Roosevelt several times in the last few weeks has declared the annihilation of the axis powers essential to American security and welfare, his inaugural address tomorrow is looked to for further enlightenment on his war program.

The President will begin his third inauguration day at a service at St. John's Episcopal church, across Lafayette square from the White House. Then he will return to the White House and proceed in state to the capitol where he will take the oath on the east front before an enormous assemblage of people and deliver his inaugural address.

From the capitol the President will return to the White House for a buffet luncheon at which there will be several thousand guests. Next there will be an air show. Then he will review the inauguration parade from a stand in Pennsylvania avenue in front of the White House. Later he will receive state governors at the White House and then appear at a tea there where several thousand more guests will be entertained.

All Hotels Are Filled.

Washington is jammed with the inauguration crowd which was arriving all day in regular and special trains, buses, and automobiles. The hotels are filled to the last cot, and a hundred Pullman cars are housing the overflow. The bunting fluttering streets are crowded with throngs of inauguration celebrants. Conspicuous in the hotel lobbies are Democratic governors and their suites who have come in full regalia to do special honor to the thrice elected Democratic President.

The preliminaries today included an interdenominational church service at Lafayette square, a reception to the visiting governors by Joseph E. Davies, chairman of the inauguration committee, and Mrs. Davies; a 1,500 plate dinner by the members of the electoral college, and the entertainment by stage stars tonight at Constitution hall.

Day's Lull in Battle.

Over all the inauguration festivities hung the pall of foreign war in which America is becoming more and more deeply involved. Inauguration day is to furnish only a 24 hour lull in the hostilities on Capitol Hill engendered by the President's bill to clothe the executive with dictatorial powers to furnish unlimited quantities of armament to any nations he may designate.

With the administration contending that the third term election is a popular vote of confidence in the Roosevelt war program, and the opposition asserting that the Roosevelt program is driving the country into war in defiance of the popular will, the battle will be resumed in the public hearing before the house foreign affairs committee Tuesday.

The prospect is that the hearings will continue all of this week and that the house will not receive the bill from the committee till next week. Passage of the bill by the house is assured, but with numerous modifying amendments.

America Wants Defense, Not a Revolution

[AN EDITORIAL]

No surveyor of the present American scene can fail to see that the people of the United States are unified in their demand that their country prepare to defend itself against any enemy or combination of enemies.

As is frequently the case, the unanimity of this demand is reflected in the manner in which proponents of other causes seek to tie themselves to it. The leading interventionist propaganda group presents itself as a committee to defend America. Every crackpot group in the New Deal bases its appeal to congress for more funds on an assertion that its particular fantasy is essential to defense, hoping that congress will ignore the fact that for years the crackpots sabotaged defense by diverting to their own schemes the appropriations that should have gone for armament.

America is unified in the demand that this nation build a navy strong enough to maintain the Atlantic and Pacific oceans as the primary barriers against invasion of the western hemisphere.

America is unified in the demand that this nation raise a powerful army, equipped with modern weapons and trained to use them. This latter unity of opinion does not prevent questioning the wisdom of a half trained conscript army on the outmoded European model, nor the patriotism of those who, in Senator Wheeler's graphic phrase, would plow under every fourth American boy on Europe's bloody soil.

What America needs is a strong air force, strong navy, and strong army. There is unanimity of opinion on that. What it does not need, what it cannot survive and remain free, is a social revolution accomplished thru powers sought on the pretense that they are needed for national defense.

If the fog of propaganda and hysteria were wiped away and America were asked the clear question whether it wishes to retain its republican form of government, there could be no doubt either as to the answer or its unanimity. It is that form of government, and the liberty which it protects, that we are ready to fight for if need be.

Yet it is the separation of powers provided by republican government that protects the liberties we seek to defend. If congress abdicates and places all power in the executive branch of the government we shall have adopted the very form of government against which we are preparing to defend ourselves. We shall have lost the struggle against Hitlerism by yielding to it. We might as well, in that event, invite Hitler to send a commission to the United States to aid the new government, since his ruthless brutality is the only system that will make a totalitarian government work for even a short period.

We cannot avoid Hitlerism by aping it. Neither can we defend ourselves against it by adopting its methods. The industrial capacity on which we must base our armed defense is the result of economic freedom. Dictatorship, which is only the ugly name for unrestrained executive power, cannot tolerate economic freedom any more than it can tolerate political freedom.

Instead of permitting the brains of industry to solve its innumerable, intricate problems, the solution of all those problems must then depend on the limited brains of the clique in control of the government. There aren't enough brains there to go around. Malevolence toward industry, while it may exist in high quarters, is not necessary to hamstring our defense efforts. Stupidity will serve as well, if it is granted sufficient range in which to assert its authority.

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits 3 Parties in 60 Minutes

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has had eight years' experience in hurrying thru crowds and smiling "no" to autograph seekers, today shepherded Mrs. Henry A. Wallace thru a stiff pace of inauguration eve receptions and teas.

The wife of the Vice President elect got her first lesson in how to take in three receptions—scheduled at the same hour—shake hands with thousands of persons, change clothes in split second timing, dash to a formal dinner, and then wind up at a concert.

As a warm-up for this schedule, Mrs. Roosevelt was hostess at a buffet luncheon at the White House for 150 guests—campaign workers who helped make this inauguration a third term for Mr. Roosevelt.

Davies Give Lavish Reception.

First on the list after Mrs. Wallace joined her was a reception given by Inaugural Chairman Joseph E. Davies and Mrs. Davies—a lavish affair of many orchids, camellias, mink coats, champagne and top notch names in society and politics.

Mrs. Roosevelt, in black velvet, and Mrs. Wallace in brown crêpe trimmed with bronze beads, stood in the receiving line along with Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., the Davies — Mrs. Davies was in black velvet and lace—and former Gov. Max Gardner of North Carolina and Mrs. Gardner whose frock was iris blue velvet.

Most of the 33 governors in town and their wives were there, as were Supreme court justices and their wives, and cabinet members and their wives. Raymond Massey, actor, and Mrs. Massey came by as did Mickey Rooney.

Roosevelt Relatives There.

Anna, the Roosevelts' daughter, and her husband, John Boettiger, a Seattle, Wash., publisher, arrived with Mrs. Roosevelt. The Roosevelt clan of five children and four of their grandchildren and Mrs. Sara Roosevelt, the President's 87 year old mother are White House guests.

From the Davies' reception Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Wallace were whisked in a White House car to the Women's National Democratic club where a crowd of several hundred women, mostly from out of town and attending a conference of affiliated Democratic clubs, were waiting.

MUSSOLINI AND HITLER CONFER ON WAR MOVES

Observers Predict New Nazi Push.

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 19 (AP).—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini conferred today, it was reported here in authoritative diplomatic circles, but where they met or what they accomplished was not revealed. Speculation, however, was that German aggressive action in a new direction, independently or to bolster Italy, is imminent.

In the past, meetings between the two axis leaders often have portended developments of importance. Italy invaded Greece on Oct. 28, the day of their last meeting at Florence.

[Telephone communications between Berlin and Rome were cut last night, a Berlin dispatch stated. It added that German officials did not deny reports that Hitler and Mussolini had conferred yesterday. According to a Rome radio broadcast heard in New York by NBC a meeting of "the directorate of all Fascist parties" has been called for tomorrow.]

Report Duce Seeks Help.

Neither Rome nor Berlin officially confirmed the meeting place of Hitler and Mussolini, but diplomatic sources said it will be disclosed eventually in a communique. It had been presumed that they would meet in Germany, perhaps at Salzburg or Munich.

Observers agreed generally that Mussolini was eager to learn whether Hitler could promise military support for Italy in Albania and North Africa and if so, how much.

[In the background of the Hitler-Mussolini conference was an announcement that France's chief of state, Marshal Petain, and Pierre Laval, ousted vice premier, had come to terms. This was believed to pave the way for resumption of Franco-German negotiations on collaboration. A French cabinet shift was also forecast.]

Is Mussolini Weakening?

British sources launched a report that Hitler had found Mussolini weakening in his confidence of an ultimate axis victory and that they had reviewed dozens of plans without being satisfied with any.

Considerable credence was given in neutral diplomatic sources to Balkan reports that the stage is set for increased air aid to Italy against Greece and against the British in the Mediterranean, from Rumanian, Italian, and Libyan bases. The meeting, these sources said, may have been merely to put the chiefs' approval on Nazi-Fascist collaboration.

In Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, a report in diplomatic quarters said the British have completed plans for air attacks on Rumanian oil fields and rail lines but are letting them lie rather than give Germany an excuse to send her air squadrons, and perhaps even troops, into Greece. If Germany moved first, however, by taking a hand in the war in Albania, it was widely believed in Belgrade that a royal air force attack on Rumania would be the first British retaliation.

Iron Guard Warns Axis' Foes.

Rail lines over which nearly 200,000 Nazi troops have been moved into Rumania, Danube river shipping, and the oil fields feeding the Nazi war machine could be dislocated for months by successful air attack, it is said.

Iron Guard speakers at 50 public rallies in Rumania warned the axis' enemies in identical language today that it would be "useless and dangerous for any one to try to sabotage our action."

In Sofia, Bulgaria, political informants said both England and Germany are seeking from Bulgaria an outright declaration of her position if the war should spread to her area. These sources said the decision may have to be made soon.

"Tremendous" Push Hinted.

ROME, Jan. 19 (AP).—That a tremendous Nazi offensive might be expected in about two months was indicated today by Mario Appelius, authoritative Fascist editor.

Writing in Premier Mussolini's paper Il Popolo d'Italia at Milan, Appelius said Germany has piled up vast supplies this winter. He did not specify on which front the offensive might start.

BROOKS CHARGES U.S. POLICY LEADS DIRECTLY TO WAR

Opposes Dictator Power in 'Lend-Lease' Bill.

England needs so badly and which she already has ordered; and the materials that America needs for its own defense, already ordered. But the administration will not give one man authority to direct that production.

"If the chief executive will not trust one of the greatest masters of mass production in America—[William S. Knudsen]—whose experience has been that of a laborer and a master producer, to take command of production, why should he then ask for more power for himself when it means surrender of representative government which is the safeguard of our people's life and liberty?

Congress Will Be Helpless.

"This bill in its present form would authorize the convoy of military supplies to belligerents by the navy of the United States. Some members of congress say this will not be done, but once this bill is passed, no member of congress will have anything to say about it, for they will have yielded all right and power to the decision of one man.

"If we do not become a voluntary active participant in this war, we can continue to aid Britain and build our own defense more effectively. This bill, however, creates powers which, if executed, would force our entry into the war and hamper our complete devotion to necessary production.

"I am for aiding Britain, but I oppose the granting of dictatorial powers to any man who has confessed that he entertains the grandiose idea of having us police the world.

"I am for providing America with a national defense so strong that no dictator or combination of them will seek to attack us. But I also am for retaining the power in the hands of the elected representatives of the people in congress to determine what acts constitute aid to other nations and what acts constitute a vital weakening of our own national defense or our entry into the war."

"Brazen" Plan, Says Nye.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] who also spoke in opposition to the war power bill, called it a "step all but straight into war," adding that it was "the most brazen request ever made, a request upon congress to surrender every bit of control it possesses to check or halt a march to war, a request for Presidential power greater than ever was accorded a war time President."

Representative Andrew J. May [D., Ky.] and Ernest W. Gibson Jr., chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, advocated passage of the bill. May argued that the United States faces a greater peril today than in 1917, and that the "defense of Britain, with all that it is possible for our country to do, is the best sort of defense of America."

Gibson said that the dictatorship argument is "tenuous" because the measure "merely delegates certain authority to the President during the period of the emergency." Thru their representatives, he said, the people could "take back the delegated power" when the emergency has passed.

RADIO CAN PLAY MUSIC OF ASCAP AT INAUGURATION

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—A "free license" granted by the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers [ASCAP] will enable the three major networks to broadcast all music to be played during President Roosevelt's inaugural ceremonies tomorrow.

Spokesmen for the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia and Mutual Broadcasting systems said today that since ASCAP had lifted the restriction on its songs for the inaugural ceremonies, the entire music program would be heard over their stations, regardless of whether the tunes were ASCAP controled.

ASCAP music has been eliminated from the three networks because of a dispute over rates.

Where United States Will Establish Base

BERMUDA—ISLE OF SOFT WINDS AND CENSORSHIP

his protests that the machine was for personal use and not for sale. Customs men seized a radio from a woman next in line and told her they would examine it overnight to determine whether it could be used for sending messages to the enemy.

Automobiles are banned in Bermuda, where old world quaintness is preserved as much as possible, so it is necessary to hire a carriage, rent a bicycle, ride the dinky train which crawls thru the islands, or go on foot. A carriage was chosen.

There were a few persons on bicycles as the horse and carriage clattered down the narrow streets. A handful of Negro children played on the curbstone. Slumbering for years, St. George is destined to hive with activity with the coming of the American base. A real estate boom is already developing. St. George last was a bustling port when it was headquarters for Confederate blockade runners during the American Civil war.

Army Engineers Headquarters.

A block from the water's edge down a back street and over a bakery is the headquarters of the United States army engineers. Maj. Donald G. White, a laconic New Englander in charge of the project, furnished a map of the land being taken over and spoke guardedly of plans for the base.

Bermuda has leased more than 500 acres to the Americans for 99 years. A semi-circular string of islands around Castle harbor will form the base. It will be a powerful fortress with a large landing field, hangars, repair shops, seaplane moorings, coastal and antiaircraft batteries, munitions stores, and a garrison area for 6,000 Americans.

So far the base is in the survey stage. The Americans have considerable charting and mapping cut out for them, because the last chart available represents the work of the British ordnance in 1898. The work could be seen when the carriage wheeled across the causeway connecting Long Bird Island with the mainland, on the road to Hamilton.

Surveyors Are Busy.

American surveyors were trudging over the islands staking out white triangulation control flags among the crimson flowering hibiscus, oleander shrubs, and lily patches. Near the causeway a survey raft was moored. Men were probing and sampling the coral bottom while blue parrot fish and winged angel fish looked on curiously from the depths.

Overhead flew three American naval PBY planes droning along on their daily patrol. The trio, under Lieut. Commander T. R. Frederick, put in its appearance after the announcement of the destroyer base deal last summer.

The United States destroyer George E. Badger, captained by Lieutenant Commander Frank Akers, put in at Hamilton harbor last November but sailed away a few days ago for an overhaul at Norfolk, Va. The destroyer Belknap came to relieve her. The destroyers act as tenders for the twin engined long range patrol bombers.

Another American naval vessel in the vicinity is the U. S. S. Bowditch, a hydrographic survey ship which has been making soundings in the great sound at the western end of Bermuda. It is still undetermined whether the Americans will have a seaplane base in that body of water.

A Placid Landscape.

From the causeway on to Hamilton there was no suggestion of war in the landscape. The white and pink coral homes were glistening clean from a recent rainfall; scarlet poinsettia adorned the well manicured lawns, and Negro farmers worked in their patches of bananas and potatoes.

Signs of war showed up again in Hamilton, headquarters for censorship and contraband control. Tied up alongside the docks was the Siboney, an American vessel. Bags of mail were skidding down a chute to the Woodside, a tender used in peacetime for ferrying tourists in from the big cruise ships. Now the Woodside ships the mail to the imperial censors.

A few days later a Dutch tug moved in and she was followed by a huge armed merchantman, guns bristling fore and aft, depth charges waiting on deck.

Encounters Some Scots.

Two Scottish soldiers, Cameron Highlanders in tam o' shanters and khaki shorts intead of kilts, strolled by. The Highlanders here are remnants of the Scottish continentals cut to pieces during the Dunkirk retreat. Their favorite prank is to start an argument with British sailors in one of the pubs by singing, "There will always be an England as long as there's a Scotland."

In a store window facing the wharf stood a huge thermometer showing contributions toward the Spitfire fund had risen to the 2,000 pound level. The sign read that already 15,000 pounds had been collected and sent to England for the purchase of three of these fighting planes.

Shop windows carry placards urging tourists to "Buy British."

Censors Have Lumpy Legs.

A group of children playing on the dockside were identified as British evacuees. Two women of thin build and classical appearance, wearing tweeds, whizzed past on their bicycles. They were pointed out as censors because of the lumps on their legs. Native Bermudian women have set up an immunity to the local mosquitoes but the censors from England have not. It was said you could always tell a British censor by the welts on her limbs.

Native colored soldiers from the Bermuda militia artillery and infantry cycled down the street. Two white members of the Bermuda volunteer rifle corps were stationed on ground at the ferry landing.

War has come home to this placid lotus land, but Bermuda, untouched by foreign hostilities during more than 300 years, is still unscarred. The nearest naval engagement was 1,000 miles away. They tried a blackout here one night early in the war but the white coral roofs of the homes, gleaming in the moonlight, made it a joke.

But Bermuda knows that with this war and the sharing of the colony with the United States, profound changes are coming in her social, political, and economic life. What the Americans are planning to do in Bermuda, how the Bermudians feel about it, the effect on the tourist trade, and the inside working of the censorship will be dealt with in subsequent stories.

RFC ANNOUNCES $1,100,000,000 IN DEFENSE LOANS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—The Reconstruction Finance corporation made approximately $1,100,000,000 in defense commitments between June and mid January, Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, reported today to President Roosevelt and congress.

F. D. R. HANDS WILLKIE A NOTE TO CHURCHILL

President Calls His Ex-Foe by First Name.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—Wendell Willkie will take a personal message from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England.

The President interrupted work on his inauguration address today to pen the message in his own hand and gave it to Willkie during a brief conference they held at the White House.

The two men who battled for the Presidency in last fall's political campaign talked in Mr. Roosevelt's oval study for about 30 minutes. Secretary of State Cordell Hull was with them.

Statement by Willkie.

"We talked about the European situation," Willkie told reporters as he left, "and the President gave me a very pleasant personal note to Mr. Churchill. It is more than just a formal introduction."

The note, it was learned, introduces Willkie with the comment that he has been trying to keep politics out of the American defense situation and expresses wishes for British success. Its salutation is "Dear Churchill."

The envelope containing the note was addressed "To a Certain Naval Person, Kindness of W. Willkie." Churchill formerly was first lord of the admiralty and shares Mr. Roosevelt's interest in ships.

Willkie said he outlined to the President his plans for the forthcoming two weeks' tour of England, advising the chief executive that he wanted to talk with all the officials who could see him and that he particularly wished to confer with Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, and Anthony Eden, foreign minister. Willkie will leave by Clipper on Wednesday.

Early Describes Meeting.

Stephen Early, Presidential secretary, gave this description of the meeting between the President and the 1940 Republican Presidential nominee:

Willkie entered and said, "I won't be long—I know what it is to be interrupted while laboring on a speech." Mr. Roosevelt extended his hand and said he was glad to see Willkie.

The President called his visitor by his first name, laughingly saying that he wished "Wendell" were going to be out on the cold inaugural stand tomorrow taking the oath instead of himself.

Favors Lend-Lease Bill.

Willkie, who flew here from New York, told reporters prior to his meeting with Hull that he favored the administration's lend-lease bill for aid to Great Britain with three "serious modifications." These, he said, would be:

1. Return to the people after a designated date of the power which the bill would confer on the President.

2. Congressional retention "of the purse strings."

3. A congressional study of the bill, section by section, "to see whether any powers conferred on the President are unnecessary."

NORMAN THOMAS SEES F.D.R. WAR POWER BILL AS THREAT TO NATION

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, warned yesterday that President Roosevelt's war powers bill places unprecedented powers in the executive branch of the government and is a threat to democracy. Thomas spoke from New York on the University of Chicago Round Table radio program.

"Almost the worst thing that can happen to democracy," Thomas said, "is for it to sidle crabwise into war. The lend-lease bill shows democracy in surrender. If Mr. Roosevelt had been as calm in his leadership in this crisis as he was in the peace crisis of 1933, we would be a lot better of. We have been cultivating hysteria by talking about crises."

Prof. Harold D. Lasswell, Washington political scientist, said America's greatest problems are internal rather than international. Edward L. Bernays, New York public relations counsellor, said: "There is no chance for democracy's being achieved under the dictatorship necessary for the prosecution of war."

RAPS REPORT ON BRITISH FINANCES AS 'BABY TALK'

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19 (AP).—Verne Marshall, chairman of the No Foreign War Committee, asserted tonight that reports of Britain's exhaustion of her dollar credits in the United States are "baby talk."

Speaking in historic Faneuil Hall, the Cedar Rapids, Ia., editor told the American Mother's Neutrality league that "England has in this country remaining credits sufficient to make many times the cash purchases made by her of us" since the beginning of the war.

"Reputable economists," he said, had set Britain's credits here in excess of 7 billion dollars and that "on top of this huge sum, England has more than 15 billions available credits elsewhere, and outside the British Isles."

DETECTS A DRIFT TO ANGLO-U. S. POLITICAL UNION

Clinton, N. Y., Jan. 19 [Special].—Belief that President Roosevelt was "feeling his way" toward an Anglo-American political union was voiced here today by Dr. Felix Morley, president of Haverford college. Dr. Morley spoke after receiving the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Hamilton college.

BURGLARS TAKE TWO COATS.

Summerdale police yesterday were seeking burglars who entered the third floor apartment of Isadore Sanders, 1015 Winona avenue, a clothing manufacturer, and stole two fur coats valued at $600 and a set of silverware.

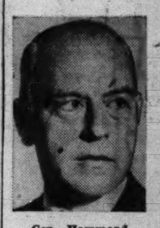
KENNEDY'S STAND SPURS CAMPAIGN OF AMERICA FIRST

War Mongers Answered, Says Gen. Hammond.

Joseph P. Kennedy, the retiring ambassador to Great Britain, has given the answer to those who are trying to push the United States into war by crying that England is our first and main line of defense, Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the America First committee, declared yesterday.



Gen. Hammond.

Commenting on Kennedy's nationwide broadcast of Saturday, Gen. Hammond said the ambassador's "stay out of war" warning further spurred efforts of the America First committee.

"When one so close to the theater of operations, in a position to obtain the real facts at first hand, agrees so completely with the views of the America First committee it is most encouraging to all who believe that the United States still is a great nation," Gen. Hammond said.

Record of Vigor Cited.

"Ambassador Kennedy pointed out that we are a country of 130 million people with a record for vigor, ingenuity, and bravery. He could not understand why even a great military machine 3,000 miles away should make us fear for our safety.

"As a veteran of the A. E. F., I, too, have been unable to understand all this hysteria. Modern warfare is highly mechanized. The name of the United States is synonymous with mechanization. We can meet anybody at that game and beat them decisively—unless we give away all our equipment.

"Ambassador Kennedy agrees with us that it would be better if England wins the war, but questions whether our whole civilization would not be threatened if in trying to help England we get into the war ourselves. There can be no doubt but that democracy as we know it will vanish from the American continent if we go into this war.

Bill Termed War Step.

"That we will be in the war—and quickly—is certain if house bill 1776, the dictatorship bill, is passed by congress. The bill is designed for that purpose. Churchill [Winston Churchill, prime minister of England] left the way open for a plea for American troops in 1942, and that's when England wants to invade the continent—with about 3 million of our American boys."

With more than 165,000 names recorded on protests being sent to Washington, D. C., against passage of the President bill, 40 volunteers continued yesterday their mobilization of the objections to the measure.

An appeal for funds with which to carry on this work, for postage and printing, was made yesterday by Mrs. Janet Ayer Fairbank, vice chairman of the Chicago chapter. She said small contributions from patriotic Americans must keep the drive in progress against the well financed propaganda machine of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. Money may be sent to her at room 901, 122 South Michigan avenue.

The drive for signatures to petitions, and for names to be placed on lists sent to congress by the committee, still is going ahead full blast, Mrs. Fairbank said. Persons may either write or telephone the committee. The telephone numbers are Wabash 5473, 5474, 5475, 5476, and 5477.

JAP SEES U. S. AS DECISIVE FACTOR IN 2 GREAT WARS

Believes Chinese Can Resist a Long Time.

TOKIO, Jan. 19 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Kazuma Suzuki today described the United States as the "decisive factor" in both the European and Asiatic conflicts. He spoke before an assembly honoring Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, the new ambassador to the United States.

"It is rash to conclude that China will crumble at an early date," said Gen. Suzuki, former commander of the Japanese forces in China.

"Because of aid from the United States and Britain," he declared, "I believe China will keep up resistance for a long period.

"A Long Term Conflict."

"I believe also that the European war is a long term conflict. I believe it will be extremely difficult for Germany to carry out a successful landing campaign on British soil. The bulk of the British navy is unharmed and larger than the German and Italian navies combined.

"The decisive factor in both hostilities undoubtedly is the United States.

"The Japanese must not be content with military preparations but must endeavor to solve their international difficulties by means of diplomacy."

Best Wishes of China.

CHUNGKING, China, Jan. 20, Monday (AP).—President Lin Sen of the Chinese republic telegraphed congratulations today to President Roosevelt on his inauguration day.

It will be 1 a. m. Tuesday in China when the President takes office for the third term at noon in Washington, D. C.

"Sincerely hope ever increasing cordiality which marks relations between our countries will be continued and strengthened during your administration," said the message. "Also wish you best of health and prosperity to United States of America."

CHURCH LEAGUE ASKS LAITY TO FIGHT WAR BILL

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Frank J. Loesch, chairman of the Church League of America, 53 West Jackson boulevard, yesterday authorized a letter to prominent laymen of the country asking their support of local clergymen who voice their views against President Roosevelt's war powers bill. Loesch's action followed a report made to him by George W. Robnett, executive secretary of the Church league, on the latter's return yesterday from Washington, where he conferred with congressional leaders.

Frank J. Loesch.

Inquiries Deluge Office.

Robnett said that during his absence, the league office had been deluged with inquiries from clergymen in response to its letter of a week ago asking action against the President's bill. The clergymen asked what steps they could take to avoid giving dictatorial powers to the President and yet speed all possible aid short of war to England.

"Looking into the matter," Robnett explained, "we found that many of the clergymen were fearful and confused, just as if the bill had been passed and they would be branded as subversive if they expressed their honest views in any public form. Such a situation, if continued, is sure to lead to some form of Nazism or Fascism in this country."

Urges Support of Clergy.

The new league letter to laymen, announced by Loesch, was signed by Robnett. It said in part:

"Propaganda has confused and bewildered our people and has driven them into a state of defeatism that could easily mean dictatorship from which there is no escape. Clergymen should be confirmed by the laity in their right to speak out against war and against this dictatorial bill. Only an aroused people can stem the tide now running toward war."

Robnett's letter states that after his consultations with congressional leaders he was led to believe that the south and the Atlantic seaboard generally, are beginning to think war is inevitable. The west, he added, "can save this country from the present grave and terrifying crisis."

PROPOSE HOUSE APPORTIONMENT ON VOTING BASIS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—The Brookings institution recommended today that the method of apportioning members of the house of representatives be based on votes cast instead of on population as at present. This would have to be done by constitutional amendment.

A study prepared for the private research organization by Laurence F. Schmeckebier said that the percentage of votes to representatives in 1938 was 29.6 for the entire country, 36.6 for the northern and western states, and 6.8 for the southern states.

It took only 35,439 votes to elect seven representatives in Mississippi in 1938, the study continued, whereas 730,024 votes were required in Kansas to elect the same number.

JUDGE M'KINLAY TERMS KENNEDY REAL AMERICAN

Judge Donald S. McKinlay of the superior court yesterday praised Saturday night's speech by Ambassador Joseph Kennedy as that of a "real American."

"Ambassador Kennedy's splendid statement on the war issues proved that he was a real American in his diplomatic position," Judge McKinlay said. "We need more representatives who are as loyal to this country as Prime Minister Churchill is to his. Many Americans sincerely believe that we should go to war alongside of England. Their opinion is entitled to respect. There are others, however, who would rather present themselves to the king and queen at Buckingham palace than to an American polling place on election day. I believe that class includes more than one who has been suggested to fill the Kennedy vacancy."

U. S. SEAMEN WHO TORE DOWN NAZI FLAG ARE FREED

Claim California Laws Bar Its Display.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19 (AP).—Two United States navy seamen who tore a Nazi flag from the German consulate yesterday were ordered released from jail tonight on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by two American Legion officials.

Superior Court Judge I. M. Golden signed the writ on petition of Allan L. Graham, judge advocate of a Legion post, and William E. Barden, commander of another Legion post, and presiding commissioner of the Superior court. Both are lawyers.

They declared that instead of being liable for punishment for malicious mischief, as charged, the sailors, Harold James Sturtevant, 22 years old, of Haverhill, Mass., and E. G. Lackey, 23, of Charlotte, N. C., should be commended for preventing a felony.

Quotes Military Code.

They asserted that under a section of the Military and Veterans' code of California, the display of the flag by the German consulate was illegal. This section declares it a felony to display any device or emblem which is an "invitation or a stimulus to anarchistic action or as an aid to propaganda of any organization that advocates the overthrow of this government."

Graham said Adolf Hitler advocated overthrow of the governments of all democracies.

Sturtevant recently was a fireman on the United States destroyer Craven. Lackey had been attached to the destroyer Perkins. Both were in civilian clothes on leave awaiting release from enlistment because of disability.

Explaining the flag snatching incident, Sturtevant said "Me and Lackey flipped a coin to see where we would go."

Taking the route directed by the coin they looked upward and saw what a crowd was staring at—the swastika flag.

"So, we climed up and cut it loose, that's all," Sturtevant said.

Brings U. S. Note of Regret.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—The United States today expressed to Germany its regret over two American seamen ripping a swastika flag from the German consulate in San Francisco.

The flag, run up in observance of the anniversary of the founding of the German reich in 1871, was snatched from its ninth floor staff yesterday.

This morning a note concerning the incident was received by the state department from the German embassy. Promptly, the department replied, expressing regret.

Inquiry Is Expected.

The exchange was not made public, but a state department spokesman said the embassy was advised that an investigation presumably will be made by San Francisco authorities.

[Authorized German sources in Berlin said the German chargé d'affaires at Washington had been instructed to ask punishment of the United States sailors involved, and assurance of the right to hoist the flag again with American protection.]

In diplomatic usage, an expression of regret is just that and not an apology.

The navy is investigating the incident, but officials said nothing would be announced until the "facts are sifted."

Campbell Leaves Ottawa to Be British Minister to U. S.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 19 (AP).—Sir Gerald Campbell, British high commissioner here, left tonight for Washington to become one of the two new British ministers to the United States. These ministers will assist Lord Halifax, the new British ambassador. Lady Campbell will join her husband in two weeks.

GERMANS ATTACK THE ILLUSTRIOUS AGAIN AT MALTA

Strike at Suez Area, Too, in Widening Air War.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—A smashing new blow against the already crippled British aircraft carrier Illustrious at Valetta, Malta, today, and an aerial thrust against British positions in the region of the Suez canal on Friday night were announced in Berlin today. It was the third attack against the Illustrious in nine days, but the first by the Nazis against the Suez area in this war.

The Germans regard the Suez canal as one of the three main strategic strongholds of the British empire. Gibraltar, the second, is gradually being brought into the sphere of action, the Germans say. Singapore, the third, is out of range for the present.

Brief Mention in Communique.

The attack on the Suez area was mentioned only briefly in the communique, which said:

"Individual German battle planes [on Friday night] attacked militarily important objectives in the region of the Suez canal in Egypt."

More details were available, however, on today's dive bomber attack on the Illustrious and the harbor at Valetta. The mid-Mediterranean island was enveloped in smoke clouds after the attack, the Germans declared. The Illustrious, previously hit on Jan. 10 and Jan. 16 and believed a helpless wreck by the Germans, was struck with three more bombs, it was said.

In addition, the Germans asserted their planes had scored a hit on a destroyer, and others on small vessels lying in the vicinity of the Illustrious. The arsenal, docks, and factories near the harbor also were reported blasted.

Lose Three Planes.

Loss of three planes was acknowledged by the Nazis, who said three British Hurricane fighters also had fallen in the aerial battles that developed.

[Dispatches from Valetta itself said at least 15 German planes had been shot down. The Germans attacked in large numbers, the message said, and caused extensive damage to civilian property.]

Today's attack on Malta followed one of yesterday in which the Germans concentrated on the island's two airfields, Halfar and Luca. Hangars and barracks were pounded to pieces or set afire while the airfields were "converted into crater landscape," it was said. In this attack, the plane losses were set at two German and one British.

[In Saturday's raid, the British at Malta said, ten Nazi planes were downed, and not six, as previously announced.]

LAVAL AND PETAIN END ROW; CABINET SHIFT EXPECTED

Policy of Collaboration with Nazis Affirmed.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Jan. 19.—Marshal Henri Petain, French chief of state, and Pierre Laval, ousted on Dec. 13, as vice premier and foreign minister, have come to terms, it was announced tonight.

Map locates La Ferte.

The announcement said Petain and Laval conferred yesterday afternoon and that misunderstandings that led to Laval's dismissal were ironed out. A shift in the governmental lineup now is expected.

[Another dispatch stated the Petain-Laval agreement opened the way for Laval's return to the cabinet. A Berne, Switzerland, dispatch said Vichy reports spoke of a "streamlined" cabinet in which authority would be concentrated in the hands of a few ministers.]

Petain and Laval were reported to have met on Petain's private train at La Ferte, on the "free" side of the line dividing occupied and unoccupied France.

Collaboration to Continue.

Marshal Petain has made no secret that France's defeat and recent events have made it necessary for France to coöperate with Germany in reorganization of continental Europe. His meeting with Laval means there has been no fluctuation in his determination to collaborate in the "new order."

Franco-German collaboration, in any event, is a firm policy on both sides of the line and, in fact, has already been given concrete expression in last week's conferences between French and German metallurgists in Paris.

There were many inexplicable elements in the ousting of Laval. For three weeks, in fact, up to the end of December, the political situation in Vichy was in a state of turmoil and relations between France and Germany were nebulous.

Await Word from Hitler.

Marshal Petain wrote to Adolf Hitler a letter covering the Laval incident and Hitler's answer has been expected for many days.

Otto Abetz, Hitler's ambassador to Paris, has been standing by in Berlin but a few days ago he returned to Paris. This was expected to be followed by the return of the French ambassador, Fernand de Brinon, to Vichy. So far as is known, De Brinon had not returned before Laval and Petain met.

Announcement of the meeting was believed to preclude any upset between France and Germany. With his enormous prestige in all sections of France, it was believed Petain would not have acted without having strong belief in the successful issue of his decision.

FEED EUROPE'S 5 DEMOCRACIES! IS PULPIT APPEAL

The only final hope for the existence of the five small European democracies now under Nazi domination is British victory, but it will be an empty victory, Chauncey McCormick declared yesterday, if, meantime, a generation needlessly is allowed to perish.

McCormick, a member of the National Committee on Food for the Five Small Democracies and chairman of its midwest division, spoke from the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church at Wheaton at the invitation of its minister, the Rev. Robert B. Stewart. The object of the committee, he said, is to find a practical plan to get food to the starving people in Finland, Norway, Holland, Belgium, and central Poland without weakening the military effectiveness of the British blockade. The food would be purchased by the governments in exile of these countries.

"Today," he continued, "the hungry of Europe are being told by German propagandists that democracy doesn't care about their plight, and that the sooner they give in to dictatorship and slavery, the sooner they can eat."

Two women yesterday joined the executive board of the committee's midwest division. They are Mrs. Byron Harvey and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley.

Germans Claim 90 Finnish Ships Lost Thru War in '40

BERLIN, Jan. 19 (AP).—The Official German news agency, DNB, said in a dispatch from Helsingfors today that about 90 vessels, totaling 60,000 tons, had been lost by the Finnish commercial fleet in 1940, most of them having been sunk by war action.

UNIDENTIFIED PLANES SUBJECT PALESTINE TO FIRST NIGHT RAID

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Jan. 18 [Delayed] (AP).—Several planes of unidentified nationality made the first night air raid of the war on the British mandate of Palestine early Saturday. Several bombs were dropped in southern Palestine but no damage or casualties were reported. A brilliant moon above low hanging clouds aided the high flying planes. Warnings sounded over the country at 1 a. m. and the all clear 30 minutes later.

JEWS IN GERMANY ORDERED TO PAY 15% SPECIAL TAX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—A new decree issued in Germany today provides that Jews must pay a special "social equalization tax" amounting to 15 per cent of their income on top of their regular income tax. The minimum income tax of most Jews who still have an income amounts to 10 per cent, which brings the minimum taxation up to 25 per cent of their income if they earn more than $660 a year. On top of that they must pay the war surtax.

The German Zeitung in Norway declares big contingents of Jewish emigrants are expected in Tokio from Poland, the Baltic states, and Norway. A monthly average of 500 Jews is expected to pass thru Yokohama in the next six months, most of them headed for the United States.

Germany has requested Portugal to allow three field trains to enter its territory from occupied France. These trains will carry Jews who were able to secure visas and transportation to the Americas.

SOUTH AMERICAN PLATINUM HELPS NAZIS WAGE WAR

Colombian Supply Flown Over Sea Each Week.

CALI, Colombia, Jan. 19 (AP).—Germany is getting potential war supplies almost within the shadow of the Panama Canal. They are flown half way around the South American continent and then across the south Atlantic.

They come from Cali, near the western coast of Colombia, a few hours flying time from Panama.

Chief of these supplies is platinum, used for fine parts of precision instruments, such as bomb sights and airplane gauges. It is extremely valuable in electrical gadgets, without which a modern war machine could not function.

Supply Flown Each Week.

For any of these uses, a little platinum goes a long way and approximately 13 to 15 pounds of it are flown from Cali to Germany every week on commercial planes.

There is nothing secret about it; the shipments are declared openly on the usual commercial invoices. From the standpoint of international law, there is nothing irregular about it because the South American countries are neutrals.

Drugs Also Cross Sea.

The planes carry the platinum by way of Lima, Peru, to Buenos Aires, Argentina, whence it crosses the Atlantic, reaching Germany thru Italy or Switzerland. Sometimes the Atlantic crossings are made by Italian flying boats.

Drugs from tropical plants also are said to reach Germany in this way.

A dribble of German products reaches South America by air.

BRITISH CAPTURE KASSALA; STRIKE AT EAST AFRICA

Believed Motorized Troops Have Crossed Frontier.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 19 (AP).—British motorized units pursuing fleeing Italian soldiers along the 200 mile Sudanese front were believed tonight to have crossed the border into Italian East Africa [Eritrea] after forcing the Fascists from Kassala, the last Anglo-Egyptian Sudan city held by Premier Mussolini's men.

Their position precarious after weeks of constant patrol action by the British, the Italians withdrew three days ago from Kassala, only 15 miles from Eritrea. It was only today, however, that the British announced reoccupation of the town the Italians had captured last July.

Little Resistance Reported.

The Italians were said to have left Kassala, a city of about 20,000 population and capital of a valuable cotton growing section, almost without firing a shot. Ethiopian irregulars operating behind the Fascists were believed partly responsible for this withdrawal. With the British constantly reinforcing positions around the town and the Ethiopian irregulars lurking along their communications in the rear, the Italians were said to have found it difficult to hold the post.

Abandonment of Kassala was believed to mean the Italians had dropped any idea of attacking the Sudan from this region, and specifically, the British said, it removed a threat to the Sennar dam controling waters of the Blue Nile. The British were said to be striking heavily at Eritrea, with light tanks and armored cars leading the eastward movement.

The Italians were believed trying to fall back to three main frontier posts built 20 miles east of Kassala.

Report Italians Retreat.

The British communique, after reporting Kassala's recapture, added:

"The Italian troops along this front are retreating, pursued and harassed by our mobile detachments. Active patroling continues in the Metemma region south of Gallabat."

Gallabat is south of Kassala and near the Ethiopian frontier. The British communique reported these other developments in the African war:

1. A heavy air raid on Tobruk, Italian base in Libya which the British have surrounded, with a huge fire started near gasoline dumps in the besieged port.

2. Air raids on targets in Italian East Africa and Italian held British Somaliland.

Artillery Action at Tobruk.

ROME, Jan. 19 (AP).—The Italian high command today said there was considerable artillery action in the Tobruk sector of Libya.

In East Africa, it said, Fascist airmen bombed British air bases in the upper Sudan and a railway station and troops in the lower Sudan.

BRITISH SEIZURE OF SHIP VIOLATES NEUTRALITY BELT

Brazil Weighs Action; Protest Possible.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 19 (AP).—A high Brazilian source said today that if Brazil takes any action in the halting and apparent seizure of the 8,199 ton French freighter Mendoza by a British warship yesterday, the action will follow the lines of earlier violations of the American neutrality zone.

The Mendoza, the navy ministry declared yesterday, was stopped by the British auxiliary cruiser Asturias about five miles off the southern coast as she was moving out of the dangerous shoal waters at that point, and then proceeded to sea with the Asturias. The newspaper O Globo said the British put a prize crew on board.

Protest Forwarded to Britain.

In earlier violations of the neutrality zone, particularly in the case of the British trailed German freighter Wakama which was scuttled by its crew last February, the Brazilian government notified the other American nations and a protest was forwarded to Britain.

Officials here said there was no question of violation of Brazil's territorial waters since the Mendoza was halted two miles outside the three mile limit. However, the incident took place about 300 miles inside the American neutrality belt. The British have not recognized the latter limit.

Carried Food Cargo.

Brazilian officials said that as a violation of the neutrality zone the incident concerned all the American nations, including the United States, which established it.

The Mendoza had been moving along the Uruguayan and Brazilian coasts for nearly a week, dodging the Asturias which followed her, keeping just outside territorial waters. She carried a cargo of food for France but had no navigation certificate to let her thru the British blockade.

CLOSE RANGE FIRE BY GREEKS HALTS ITALIANS' THRUST

Wait Until Fascists Are Near, Then Open Up.

ATHENS, Jan. 19 (AP).—An Italian attempt to recapture important heights held by the Greeks north of the Albanian city of Kilsura was beaten off with Italian losses of men and material, it was reported here today. Greek sources said their soldiers waited in snow bound positions until the Italian counterattackers approached very near. Then the Greeks opened up with heavy fire, driving the Fascists back.

The weather along the whole front continued severe, with a snowstorm blowing over most of the fighting ground. The Greeks said these bad conditions restricted activities to local operations and artillery duels.

Advance of Local Character.

Summarizing the day's operations, a government spokesman said "despite adverse weather conditions a new advance of local character was effected by our troops."

"An important reconnaissance patrol was completed and some prisoners were taken. According to information we have obtained, some new battalions of Blackshirts have arrived in Albania but have stayed in the rear—not following the division of Tuscany Wolves whose 77th regiment was exterminated. The Italians say nothing of this in their communiques."

The spokesman denied Rome reports that Salonika had sustained heavy bomb damage and that British motorized forces had arrived in Salonika.

Heavy Fighting on Coast.

STRUGA, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 19 (AP).—Reports reaching this border town today said the Greeks and Italians have been fighting hard for the past 24 hours in the coastal sector near Dukati north of Chimara. The Greeks pushed forward, the reports said, but the Italians counterattacked and drove them back to their positions with heavy losses on both sides.

Greek airmen were said to have bombed the port of Valona, but there were no reports of the damage. Greek sources said Italian transport planes were dropping sacks of food near Greek troops, mistaking them for Italians.

Snow Restricts Activity.

ROME, Jan. 19 (AP).—Heavy snows in Albania have greatly limited the activity of both the Fascist and Greek troops, the Italian high command said today.

Action Shot of our Gas Gauge Needle

A LOT of people think Buick gas gauge needles are lazy or something.

For when you've got Compound Carburetion in your FIREBALL eight, that needle gives a pretty good imitation of a schoolboy snail hurrying home with a bad report card.

In fact, it takes that needle from 10% to 15% longer than it did a year ago, according to 1941 Buick owners, to get from the Full mark down to Empty.

Sound interesting? Well, wait till you see the lively action that goes along with this slow-motion gas consumption—action any dealer will be tickled pink to demonstrate any time you say.

WAR OFFICE AID CALLS ON LABOR TO CO-OPERATE

Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, yesterday called upon American labor for full coöperation to prepare the United States for all emergencies and "to see that maximum help reaches England."

"This nation can not afford the loss of one day's production at any of the plants turning out military essentials," he said in an address before the Chicago Federation of Labor in Musicians' hall, 175 West Washington street. "The time is too short for such wastefulness."

Patterson said the best possible guarantee of swift, efficient production is the coöperation of labor given in the spirit of free partnership, and promised that the social gains won by labor would be preserved. "To reach the point where our democracy is no longer in danger requires national unity, and for unity we must have industrial peace," he said. "In time of peril voluntary arbitration is by far the most satisfactory method of adjudicating differences between industry and labor."

CLERGYMAN RUNS A NIGHT CLUB IN EGYPT FOR TARS

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Jan. 19 (AP).—An English clergyman is running a night club for British tars at this great African base because he doesn't want them to get "gypped."

The Rev. Alan Spender, 29 years old, said that when he came here in 1939 he found "prices soaring 100 per cent and seamen had no place to go to get clean, wholesome entertainment, "so I decided to do something about it."

He converted a 150 year old Greek hospital into a naval club and built a huge addition to house a night club, bars, lounge, bedrooms, and concert halls. Now the smiling, broad-shouldered ex-rector from Birmingham is resident chaplain of the Alexandria fleet club which daily serves 4,000 meals and 12,000 bottles of beer.

BRITONS TO QUIZ CABINET ON WAR IN HOUSE SESSION

Keep Control Over Use of Dictatorial Powers.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Practically every phase of the government's war effort will be discussed when parliament next meets. Already the questions which ministers will be asked to answer indicate dissatisfaction with the manner in which vast executive powers have been or have not been used.

The sessions also may demonstrate the contrast of American congressional machinery with that of the British parliament in which the latter, despite granting the government sweeping powers, is able to control and supervise their use or prevent their abuse by executives who are constantly responsible to the legislature for their actions.

Criticism of Bevin.

Debate on the use of manpower is expected to last two days. Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, probably will be criticized again for failing to invoke, to the fullest extent, complete dictatorial powers over labor to speed up production. Bevin has been hesitant in using the heavy club in his hand on the ground that for the most part the voluntary system is best.

Herbert Morrison, minister of home security, altho now announcing the "greatest conscription order in history"—that of compelling every man between 16 and 60 in the country to do rooftop watching 48 hours weekly and serve as fire bomb fighters, has been criticized for not doing this before the fire blitz on London on Dec. 29.

The food ministry probably will be under fire for the meat muddle and other food inequalities because of speculation, profiteering, hoarding, and failure to ration such products as eggs and cheese, of which there is a scarcity.

Inroads of Communists.

Another subject will be the extent to which communists in England are promoting defeatism and disaffection in war factories and labor trouble among dock workers.

Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express complained that despite Britain's unprecedented need for shipping "dock workers at Glasgow have been needlessly delaying ships because of refusal to do piece work," insisting on being paid full daily wages and hired accordingly. The insistence of Glasgow bus drivers that they go to shelters during raids is attributed to communist activity. Antiwar agitation among the nation's munitions workers also is a problem.

THE TRIBUNE understands the government takes a grave view of communist activity and is considering adopting suppression measures against "those elements in the party" agitating against war.

Penalties on Sailors.

Minister of Pensions Sir Walter Womersley, will be asked why "his department is penalizing sailors who have escaped from Nazi hands." Sailors who were rescued in a daring destroyer exploit from the German steamer Altmark in a Norwegian port have been informed by the government that their payments of old age pensions and health insurance premiums "were in arrears" all the time they were German prisoners and unless they make up the difference in a lump sum their awards will be deducted accordingly.

Recently there has been a renewal of public demand that the government clarify its peace and war aims, but THE TRIBUNE learns that the committee set up to formulate these has not completed a satisfactory draft which could add anything to what already has been said.

The weekly, Cavalcade, demanding that the government immediately tackle this problem, says: "Democracy's answer to Hitler's specious new economic order cannot merely be —democracy. That overworked word needs redefining in the widest terms of social regeneration."

EX-AID TO OOM THE OMNIPOTENT SHOT; HUNT BOY

Nyack, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP).—Percy W. Whittlesey, 45 years old, who had been active recently in a pro-British committee, was critically wounded today in his luxurious home overlooking the Hudson river and police immediately began a search with bloodhounds for an 18 year old house boy identified by District Attorney George V. Dorsey as Walter Groebli.

Whittlesey, until recently secretary to the fabulous Pierre A. Bernard—once known as Oom the Omnipotent to his followers in the cult of Tantrik—was shot six times, with bullets in his chest and mouth.

Leaving a trail of blood, Whittlesey staggered 600 yards to a school operated by the Nyack Missionary alliance, where he was found by a student who took him to a hospital.

In Groebli's quarters police said they found a diary which contained evidence that Groebli was a Nazi sympathizer. Whittlesey was described as having a 50-50 chance to survive. He is a Harvard graduate and a member of the British Institute of Philosophical Studies.

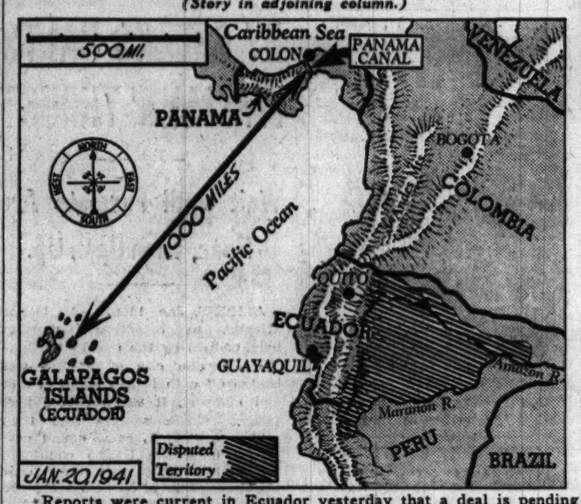
Report U. S. Base Deal Pending

(Story in adjoining column.)



Reports were current in Ecuador yesterday that a deal is pending which would give the United States air and naval bases in the Galapagos Islands in co-operation with Ecuador. It is also understood the United States would help arbitrate the long standing border dispute between Ecuador and Peru.

U. S. ENVOYS TELL BRITISH TO LEAVE VICHY TERRITORY

Provide Cash; Ship to Depart Soon.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Jan. 19.—American consular authorities today sent circulars to British subjects living in unoccupied France advising them to leave the country. Some 5,000 British subjects live in the free zone and are supplied with funds by American consular officials thru arrangement made some months ago between the London government and Washington, D. C.

It was not disclosed whether the warning to leave foreshadowed any critical war developments or concerned difficulties which might occur in the future in making transfer of funds. The circulars told the British that it might be impossible for American consuls to continue to make payments in a short time.

Ship to Leave Marseilles.

The British were advised that a ship will be leaving Marseilles in three weeks time. It will be capable of repatriating 1,700 people. Under the present arrangement, any American consul will pay a maximum of 1,500 francs [about $30] to any British subject in France.

The French are closely watching the struggle in Washington, D. C., over President Roosevelt's war powers bill. They are eager to see whether these powers will include the possibility of the President being able to go to war without consulting congress.

See a Parallel Case.

The reason for this interest is that a parallel case existed here. Former Premier Edouard Daladier was voted plenary powers long before the outbreak of the war. According to the French constitution then operative, the chamber of deputies had to be consulted before a declaration of war could be made. One of the charges against Daladier likely to be preferred before the Riom court, [which will hear the "war guilt" cases] is that he went to war without consulting the chamber.

It is charged that the Daladier government based its declaration of war on the mere fact that the chamber had voted war credits. Some say this extension of credits was equivalent to an indorsement of a war declaration. Others say it was not.

Nazi News Agencies Play Up Kennedy Radio Speech

BERLIN, Jan. 19 (AP).—German news services gave extended space today to the radio address of Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Great Britain. The accounts emphasized the opinion attributed to him that no extraordinary danger confronts the United States and that in any event the war in Europe is not America's war.

1,000 U. S. TROOPS NOW AT BASE IN NEWFOUNDLAND

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—A thousand American soldiers already are at the recently acquired United States base at Newfoundland, it was disclosed today by Louis E. Emerson, commissioner of defense for Newfoundland. He said American architects and engineers are there and that altho plans call for completion of construction at the base in 18 months, work is being rushed and may be finished sooner.

Emerson and John H. Penson, commissioner of finance of Newfoundland, left unexpectedly on the Atlantic Clipper for Libson, en route to London, to take part in final negotiations on the base in Newfoundland, one of several acquired from Great Britain by the United States in exchange for 50 destroyers.

Also aboard the Clipper was a three man state department commission going to London to confer on the 99 year leases. The men are Charles Fahy, assistant solicitor general; Col. Harry J. Malony, United States army field artillery, and Commander Harold Biesemeier, United States navy.

ECUADOR STUDIES DEAL TO GIVE U. S. GALAPAGOS BASE

Plan to End Dispute with Peru Also Reported.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Jan. 19 (AP).—A western hemisphere deal in which the United States would coöperate with Ecuador in building air and naval bases in the Galapagos islands and help arbitrate the long-standing border dispute between Ecuador and Peru was reported under consideration tonight.

The Ecuadorean government declined official confirmation or denial, but the story persisted in high political circles. Highly reliable information obtained at the capital at Quito indicated that:

1.—The United States wants bases in the Galapagos, off Ecuador's Pacific coast, and commanding the approach of the Panama canal, only if they can be obtained with the complete approval and coöperation of the people of Ecuador.

2.—Ecuadorean political leaders believe the people are ready to accept a proposition for bases because they are losing their fear of "Yankee imperialism" and feel that arming the strategically-located islands would protect Ecuador as greatly as they would the United States.

Desires Defense of Americas.

President Carlos Arroya del Rio said in an interview that Ecuador "desires with all fervor the defense of continental America," and added:

"The moment has not yet come to determine the form of coöperation which Ecuador will be able to give in this defense, but when it does, Ecuador will give it within the pattern of her laws, maintaining unharmed the fullness of her sovereignty, and with a broad, comprehensive spirit."

An Ecuadorean argument against leasing Galapagos bases always has been that such a step might violate sovereign guarantees of her constitution, but under a broad construction of the constitution such as President Arroya del Rio implied the lease of bases might be declared a move to national defense.

Wants Dispute Settled.

It was learned reliably that the Ecuadorean government would like to settle its border dispute with Peru —for one thing, to remove possible provocation for incidents such as the outbreak at Quito last Sunday.

[Two rioters were shot dead, 17 were wounded and 13 policemen were hurt in that disorder which started with a demonstration in Quito and was climaxed with the stoning of the president's palace. Authorized sources in Quito said the rioting and recent border incidents were related.]

Quito sources said Ecuador was willing to have the border issue arbitrated, if such a proposal were acceptable to Peru, but did not want to risk a rebuff and would like to have the moral support of the United States.

It was said that both the border dispute and the Galapagos problem were in a "state of negotiation."

GERMAN RAIDER FALLS IN FLAMES ON ENGLISH FARM

4 Flyers Killed; 3 Planes Downed in Day.

LONDON, Jan. 20, Monday (AP).—A German raider crashed in flames on an English farm last night, killing the four members of its crew and bringing to three the number of Nazi planes reported destroyed in scattered aerial activity.

One German plane was reported brought down in southern England, and a German bomber shot down into the English channel by British fighter planes late yesterday.

A raid alarm sounded in London shortly after blackout time last night. Listeners heard what seemed to be a lone raider. There were only two gunfire bursts before midnight and the "all clear" sounded about two hours after midnight.

Raiders Along the Coast.

Raiding aircraft were reported near a town in western England and a large number of raiders approached a south coast town showering down fire bombs. Watchers and volunteers soon extinguished them.

During the daylight hours a single bomber attacked an east coast town in the morning, "causing little damage but a few casualties," it was stated.

The weather over the Strait of Dover was unsettled with a strong sou'wester blowing up a choppy sea. The daylight visibility was good except for a mist which obscured the French coast.

There were no reports by evening on any British offensive action on the continent.

Claim Two Steamers Sunk.

BERLIN, Jan. 19 (AP).—In its communique today the high command said a German U-boat had sunk two steamers, totaling 8,600 gross tons, while on Friday night the air force started a number of fires in the southern part of Swansea, Wales, in attacks on military objectives.

Two airports in southeast England were attacked by a battle plane on Saturday, the communique said, scoring some bomb hits among "a considerable number of planes" on the ground.

SPAIN TO GET BRITISH WHEAT STORED IN U. S.

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—The British embassy at Madrid and the Spanish ministry of industry and commerce have signed an agreement for shipment to Spain of quantities of Canadian wheat now stored by Britain in the United States, it was made known tonight.

Under this agreement, said to have been reached yesterday, the first shipment of 15,000 tons will leave Baltimore, Md., shortly in Spanish ships.

The contract is regarded as a sign of improved British relations with Spain, often regarded as tied to the Rome-Berlin axis but suffering from a wheat shortage. It is also seen as an indication of smooth progress in British-Spanish talks on the status of Tangier, the Moroccan internationalized zone which Spanish forces have occupied.

Continue Hunt for Lost Bomber on Land and in Air

McChord Field, Wash., Jan. 19 (AP).—Still without a definite clew, ground crews and aerial searchers converged on a southwest Washington wooded area today in the hunt for a United States army bomber, missing since Thursday with seven aboard. Officers of the air corps said the search centered in an area bounded roughly by the headwaters of the Cowlitz river on the north and the Columbia river on the south, and from the Pacific highway between Seattle and Portland to the summit of the Cascade mountain range.

BOXER SLAYS STAFF OFFICER OF GERMAN ARMY IN RUMANIA

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 20, Monday (AP).—Dispatches to Belgrade newspapers reported today that a German general staff officer had been slain in Bucharest and a former professional boxer "of Greek origin" had been arrested as his assailant.

Five shots were said to have been fired into the officer on a busy thoroughfare only two blocks from the Rumanian royal palace, now used as headquarters for the German general staff.

The victim was identified as a Maj. Doring, said to have held a position of importance in the so-called Nazi expeditionary force in Rumania. He fell dead at the entrance to the Hotel Ambassador.

Dispatches to Belgrade newspapers reported that Bucharest police said the boxer told them he quarreled with the officer in a café, and killed him.

AMERICAN PLANE OUTFLIES GERMAN FIGHTER IN TEST

Easier to Fly, but Needs More Guns, British Say.

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—A fast new American built fighter plane outflew a captured German Messerschmitt in a mock air battle arranged as a closely studied test.

The British pilot who flew the American made plane—one of the latest models to reach Britain—termed it more maneuverable than a British Spitfire, but needing more guns.

One expert who looked on expressed a wish for still more motor power for speed and altitude.

Like Specks of Quicksilver.

They dived and twisted like specks of quicksilver in the sunny winter sky while a lone British Hurricane circled above to make sure that no passing patrol thought it was a real dog-fight and joined in.

When the British pilot stepped from the American plane after the sham battle he said to the Messerschmitt pilot:

"Good show. But if you had stayed to fight you wouldn't have had a chance. My kite was beautifully maneuverable and would turn inside a Spitfire. But its armament is a bit light to our conservative way of thinking. I'd feel happier with at least eight guns of that caliber."

[The number of machine guns on the American-built plane was not disclosed. Most British fighter planes are equipped with eight.]

"Daddy of the Spitfires."

Britain's superfighter of the air for battles this spring will be what one air force officer called the "daddy of all Spitfires. The plane is known as "Spitfire the III." and is called a "remarkable development" of the original Spitfire.

Britain's "team of the most formidable fighter planes the world has known" will be re-engined and re-armed Hurricanes, new Tornadoes, new Whirlwinds, and improved Defiants, it was disclosed.

The speed of Spitfire the III. will be far in excess of 400 miles per hour, it was said. It will be armed with cannons and machine guns more deadly than before.

"Indications are that the crack fighter on the Nazi side will be a greatly improved Heinkel 113 . . . also a probable new Focke-Wulf fighter will make its debut," the Daily Mail said.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NATIONAL CANNERS' ASSOCIATION

Strength and Security

COMES IN CANS

A great part of America's strength and security comes in cans! For the American dinner table has long been a symbol of national strength, and canned foods are a vital part of the average diet. This year the well-stocked larder, with its canned foods, takes on added importance as an assurance of national well-being. By making it possible for American families to enjoy, the year 'round, foods grown only seasonally, canners play an increasingly significant role in the promotion of national welfare.

Likewise, the times give dramatic emphasis to the part efficient distribution plays in providing a channel through which canned foods flow quickly and economically to communities throughout the land. By increasing the efficiency of distribution, mass distributors carry to consumers canned foods at prices that make possible and promote wider consumption.

More efficient distribution also means better returns to producers and suppliers, better wages and hours to the employees who develop it, and a higher living standard for consumers.

The present world crisis injects extraordinary weight into your meetings. We know that your convention will provide additional impetus for America's progress toward ever great strength and security.

A&P extends an especially hearty welcome to the members of the canning industry as another convention of the National Canners' Association gets under way.

ONE REFUGEE WHO SCORNS ENTRY TO U. S.: KING CAROL

Threatens Fast to Death if He Is Given Visa.

New York, Jan. 19 (AP).—Former King Carol of Rumania is so despondent he threatens to begin a fast to death on Tuesday unless he can escape from Spain by then, friends of the abdicated Rumanian monarch said today.

Former King Carol.

They described his plight as "desperate" and said a decision by the United States to deny him entry to this country might be his only salvation in the complicated legalities which hold him in a seemingly inextricable web in Spain.

Carol probably is the only refugee in all Europe whose happiness depends on not getting an American visa.

Friends Give Explanation.

His friends, saying their information was from the former king's authorized representatives, stated the strange situation this way:

"His majesty will hunger strike to death if America does not promise Spain that the United States will under no circumstances give him a visa to go to America before the war is over."

Spanish Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner, they said, advised the British and American ambassadors in Madrid that Spain would let Carol go to Portugal if both their countries promised not to admit him.

The British ambassador, Sir Samuel Hoare, immediately replied that Britain would give Carol no visa, his friends said, but American Ambassador Alexander W. Weddell answered that American immigration laws were not easily altered and he believed no exception could be made for Carol if he applied for a visa and was found eligible.

Awaits Reply Until Tuesday.

"The king will await a reply until Tuesday. If he does not leave Spain by then we fear for his life—we know that he would rather die than continue his present unbearable, shameful situation," one friend said.

Asked about Mme. Magda Lupescu, Carol's friend who joined him in exile, this informant answered:

"She refuses to abandon Carol. She will do her utmost to encourage him up to the last—whatever he decides to do or whatever happens—she will follow him."

Carol is believed seeking sanctuary in Portugal, out of reach of the Rumanian Iron Guardists whose revolution overthrew him and whose bullets sped him out of the country. The new Rumanian régime has been trying to get some members of Carol's entourage back to Rumania from Spain.

Why Spain would permit Carol to go to Portugal, but no further, was not explained.

FATHER JOINS TACOMA SEARCH FOR LOST GIRL, 15

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 19 (AP).—Dr. Ralph Falk, of Boise, Idaho, came to Tacoma today and joined a search for his 15 year old daughter, Carol, missing since yesterday noon from exclusive Annie Wright seminary. He said he had no clews.

Police officers and school officials declined comment on the disappearance. An order to the Washington state patrol to watch for the girl had not been recalled today.

She was described by friends as five feet, six inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes.

A RIVER PEARLER WHO FOUND GEM FOR QUEEN SLAIN

Jumbo, Killer Himself, Stabbed in Battle.

Mount Carmel, Ill., Jan. 19 [Special].—Jumbo Adams, picturesque old river man who made Wabash river history 35 years ago by finding a pearl that went into a necklace for the queen of England, was stabbed to death today.

Jumbo, who was 61 years old, was sleeping on his houseboat pulled on a vacant lot four blocks from the river, when his river man comrade, Ed Belcher, returned with a bottle of liquor and a mess of fish.

Ed wanted Jumbo to help clean the fish. Jumbo wanted to sleep. They fought for a while, Jumbo with an ax and Ed with a butcher knife. Ed finally killed Jumbo with a thrust thru the back. Then Ed roamed the neighborhood, explaining that he had killed Jumbo and asking to be locked up. But no one would believe him.

Slayer Free for Hours.

It was hours before Ed got into the Wabash county jail.

The story of the pearl was recalled by Judge Clarence Partee of the County court and confirmed in Chicago by H. M. Phipps of 7603 Sheridan road, who was then Wabash county state's attorney.

Jumbo, whose real name was William, got into the clam business when it was new here. He specialized in searching the clam shells for pearls that he could sell for a good price.

Sells Pearl for $800.

One morning he found the biggest pearl any one hereabouts had ever seen. He started for the business district with it. On the way he met a physician, who bought it for $800.

Jumbo spent the money in a hurry on liquor and returned to his clamming. Some time later he met an enemy, riding in a buggy. Jumbo stepped in front of the horse and began shooting. His enemy could have shot him, but was afraid of shooting the horse. And so the enemy, Hankus Pate, fell dead before Jumbo's fire.

Prosecutor Phipps sent Jumbo to the penitentiary on a murder charge. When he was paroled eight years later, there were stories that the queen of England, pleased with his pearl, had interceded.

But Phipps said tonight that this was untrue. The physician, Phipps said, sold the pearl to Tiffany's in New York. It brought $10,000 in Paris, where it was made into the queen's necklace. Phipps doubts, however, that the queen ever knew about Jumbo.

MEXICO BIDS FOR U. S. TO BUY ORES AXIS NOW TAKES

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19 (AP).—A high government official said today that President Manuel Avila Camacho's administration would welcome an exclusive arrangement with the United States that would dry up the stream of essential war metals now flowing to the axis from Mexico. The idea is that United States should purchase the republic's entire production to build up reserve stocks.

It was reported in diplomatic quarters that such a program was being studied by the American government but that no decision had been reached because statistical information was not complete.

Government Is Concerned.

The official informant said the government was deeply concerned over Mexico's part in supplying the war machines of Japan and, as is generally believed, Germany, but that nothing could be done by Mexico alone to change this because the mining industry is depressed. He indicated, however, that the administration was prepared to make concessions, reducing the prices of metals concerned, should the United States undertake an exclusive contract.

Hundreds of tons of Mexican lead, copper, zinc, manganese and antimony sail out of Mexican Pacific ports each month for the orient, and it is believed here that a substantial percentage of these shipments reach Germany by way of Russia.

Mercury exports alone, it is said, amount to $250,000 a month.

Aid to Mining Industry.

The revenue now obtained from axis exports, informed sources asserted, is essential to the stability of the Mexican mining industry. An embargo on axis shipments, unless markets are assured in the United States, independent sources assert, could not be ordered without causing the mining industry to collapse.

Already confronted with the problem of how to liquidate deficits in the government controled petroleum and railway industries, Mexico by herself lacks means of cushioning her most important industry, mining, without United States aid, it was said.

There have been no negotiations with the United States, it was said.

LOVERS PLUNGE BENEATH TRAIN WHILE EMBRACED

New York, Jan. 19 [Special].—Locked in each other's arms, Mrs. Caroline Hartwell Patterson, 27 years old, and Israel Hurvitz, 41, both formerly of Boston, Mass., jumped underneath a subway train today. The woman was killed and Hurvitz, who landed beneath her, lost his right leg.

As Hurvitz was being carried away he tried to fling himself off a stretcher and onto the tracks again.

He told police he is married to a woman who had become an invalid. Mrs. Patterson, he said, was married to a man who is in a tuberculosis sanitarium and has an 8 year old daughter, Eugenia, in an institution in Belfast, Me.

Hurvitz and Mrs. Patterson met several months ago. They fell in love. Differences of religion, their tangled marital status, and their joblessness convinced them that they could never get married. So they hitch-hiked to New York, took a room in a lower east side rooming house, and then determined to kill themselves.

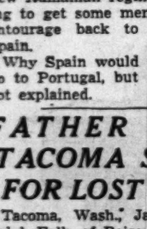
Medical Research Cuts Life Insurance Costs, but...

'HINDSIGHT AND FORESIGHT'
a weekly column by
Holgar J. Johnson
President Institute of Life Insurance

IF length of life were the only element in insurance costs, the premiums you pay would reflect directly the results of medical research. But there are other elements.



JOHNSON

* * *

Last year the deaths from influenza and pneumonia registered a striking drop—a record that can be credited directly to the more widespread use of the new miracle drugs: Sulfapyridine and Sulfathiazol. Pneumonia showed an improvement of 17% over the preceding year, which in turn had showed almost as large a one over 1938. The improvement in influenza—30%—is even more sensational. But the proof here is not so conclusive, in that the occurrence and severity of "flu" are subject to larger fluctuations from year to year.

The other day I happened to be discussing this with a very practical-minded policy owner. In the course of our conversation he suggested: "I suppose now that medical science is saving these lives, the cost of insurance will go down."

It is quite true that the cost of insurance to the policy owner is influenced by improvement in the death rate as experienced by the company.

Another vital factor in cost, and one subject to wide changes, is the average interest rate that the companies earn on their reserve funds. If we could wipe out influenza and pneumonia altogether, our yearly savings would be only a fraction of the increased cost of life insurance due to the reduction in the interest rate since 1930.

There are some elements in the cost of life insurance that the companies can control. For example, they are constantly at work to reduce their expenses wherever they can without the sacrifice of necessary services to policyholders.

Personally, I think that policy owners ought to know the importance not only of medical research, but also of the rate of interest as factors in life insurance costs.

ANOTHER BIG ADVANTAGE FOR YOU IN SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS

THE SMOKE'S THE THING

THE SMOKE OF SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS GIVES YOU EXTRA MILDNESS, EXTRA COOLNESS, EXTRA FLAVOR—AND

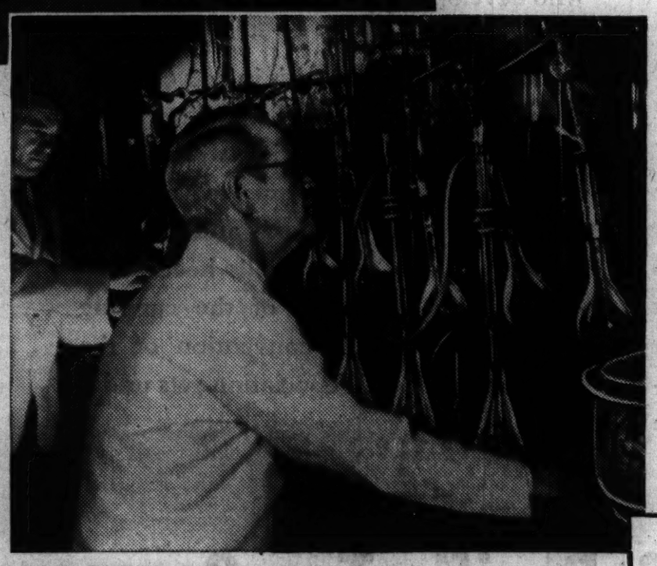
28% LESS NICOTINE

than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—less than any of them—according to independent laboratory tests of the smoke itself



"SMOKING OUT" THE FACTS about nicotine. Experts, chemists—and intricate laboratory machines—analyze the smoke of 5 of the largest-selling brands... find that the smoke of slower-burning Camels contains 28% less nicotine than the average of the other brands tested—less than any of them!

FOR many a year your taste and your tongue told you there was something distinctive about Camels...something you just couldn't seem to find in any other cigarette.

Then scientific research told you Camels were slower-burning. You learned that this slower way of burning meant more mildness, more coolness, and more flavor in the smoke.

Now, new tests—impartial laboratory tests of the smoke itself—confirm still another advantage of Camel's slower burning: Less nicotine in the smoke. Less than any of the four other largest-selling brands tested—28% less than the average!

And when independent laboratory tests reveal such a distinct advantage for one brand of cigarettes over all the others tested—that's worth your looking into—right now!

Try the slower-burning cigarette ... try Camels. Compare them ... compare them by smoking them. The smoke's the thing!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina

BY BURNING 25% SLOWER than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—Camels also give you a smoking plus equal, on the average, to 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

SURVEY REVEALS CHICAGO LAGS IN CLINICS FOR POOR

Social Agencies' Council Describes Needs.

Chicago lags behind other large American cities in providing free medical clinics for needy persons, according to a report published by the Council of Social Agencies.

The report stated that New York City offers five times as much free clinical service as does Chicago, altho it has only twice as much population, and that Boston, Mass.; Detroit, Mich., Milwaukee, and Los Angeles county, California, offer service equal to Chicago's altho each has a substantially smaller population.

Conditions Are Described.

Conditions in the clinics, which are described as taxed far beyond capacity, are described by the Council of Social Agencies as follows:

"Patients who are sick are bandied from one clinic to another and back; diagnosis is frequently delayed; funds for free eyeglasses and appliances are inadequate; patients needing dental care have little hope of getting it, particularly dentures; patients must wait long periods in overcrowded clinics; for the Negro the lack of facilities is particularly great; some clinic departments are 'booked' weeks and months in advance."

The report estimates that the work of voluntary clinics supported by private funds and serving both indigent and paying patients has doubled in the last decade. During this time the amount of free work has increased four or five times.

Few Who Can Pay Served Free.

Despite this apparent discrepancy there is little evidence that persons who can pay are getting free service, the report said. A survey of patients served in 16 of the city's general clinics showed that in January, 1939, only 3.9 per cent of those assisted without charge had resources adequate to pay for medical attention.

Some of this number received free attention because their ailments were of a rare variety that encouraged experiment or study. Others were served free because the prescribed treatment was costly and prolonged.

Among the 4,502 cases analyzed 2,039, or 45.2 per cent, of those admitted to the clinics came from self-supporting families on or near the margin of subsistence. Of the others, 2,067 came from families on relief.

2,683,080 Visits Made in 1939.

It was shown in the report that during 1939 patients made 2,683,080 visits to the 25 clinics operating in Chicago. Almost half of these visits were made to special clinics [those specializing in a single ailment]. There are nine of these in the city devoted chiefly to tuberculosis, veneral disease, and eye and ear disorders. Almost all their work is tax supported.

Only two of the general clinics [those where any complaint is investigated] are tax supported. These are the Cook County hospital and the Research and Educational clinic maintained by the University of Illinois.

Others Privately Maintained.

The remaining general clinics are maintained by universities, hospitals, medical schools, and charitable agencies. The Chicago Relief administration and the Community Fund contribute to the support of 13 of these.

The solution to the problem of inadequate free clinical facilities, the report said, lies in the establishment of more tax supported clinics

"Branch dispensaries of Cook County hospital, located on the far north, the far south, and the far west side, together with reorganization of the Cook County hospital clinic to provide a more complete service would result in an enormous improvement," the report said.

WHITNEY YACHT SUNK IN CHOPPY OCEAN; 6 SAVED

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 19 (AP).—The 73 foot motor yacht Adventure, owned by Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney of New York, went down today in choppy seas about 20 miles off the winter quarter lightship to which she was being towed by the Boston collier A. L. Kent.

Cross indicates where yacht went down.

A passenger, unidentified, and five members of the crew, were safely aboard the collier, which had taken the yacht in tow when she became disabled early this morning 15 miles north of Cape Charles, Va.

Coast guard cutters and a plane were en route to give aid before the sinking was reported.

The Adventure was under charter to George M. Francis of Teaneck, N. J. Francis was not aboard.

Taxpayers Get Warning on 1939 Realty Delinquency

County Treasurer John Toman warned yesterday that delinquent taxpayers will have only ten more days in which to pay their 1939 real estate taxes before the property is sold for taxes. He said sale of the delinquent property has been ordered by the county court.

THE FRAMED TIMBERS OF A WAR CONSPIRACY.

Mr. Willkie did not appear at the Town Hall meeting with merely a listener's interest in what Dr. Kingdon and Norman Thomas might have to say for and against war bill 1776. He went there to take an unannounced part in the discussion and to make his avowal of complete accord with the granting of what he called "extraordinary powers" to Mr. Roosevelt.

A suspicion that this was not spontaneous but prearranged led to inquiry, and Mr. Thomas said he had been informed in advance that Mr. Willkie would be there and was asked if he had any objection if Mr. Willkie followed him in the discussion. Mr. Thomas says that Mr. Denny, the moderator, acted in good faith and consent was given to the arrangement. Visitors occasionally do take part in the program when called on, and Mr. Willkie fitted himself into this scheme.

By doing so he obtained for his announcement not only the small audience gathered to hear the broadcast but a nation-wide audience habitually listening to this program. To that audience the unexpected character of Mr. Willkie's appearance would have dramatic effect, exceeding any of a prearranged and scheduled use of the radio. The value of the effect was probably calculated for the occasion.

Mr. Willkie also is appearing in movie shorts, making the same declaration that Mr. Roosevelt must be given these powers for war and dictatorship, because the American way of life will perish if, without them, Mr. Roosevelt is unable to rescue the nation from its frightful position. We heard a great deal from Mr. Willkie during the campaign about the American way of life, but he did not then say that unless the chief executive could force congress to give him powers to control all the resources of the country and to transfer all its military material of every kind to certain warring nations the United States would be destroyed within a few years. Neither did Mr. Roosevelt say till after election that he was going to demand the powers of an unlimited ruler.

Republicans now realize that they were the victims of an audacious and unscrupulous conspiracy. The scene in Philadelphia would have been complete if Mr. Ickes, Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Jackson, and Mme. Perkins had appeared in the back rooms to pull the wires and procure the nomination of a man who would go along with them during the campaign and would go along with Mr. Roosevelt after the election. Republicans realize now that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie were brothers in arms, going down the same road together when they were supposed to represent opposing views. Mr. Willkie made the Republican party by this deception, which was not perceived, not a party of opposition such as is needed if this is to be a republic, but a party of compliance and coöperation, with a candidate saying yes to what the other candidate proposed.

It is plain now that there was a conspiracy somewhere. Mr. Roosevelt decorated the scene for it by trying to assume a detached rôle. He passed over competent men in his own party and appointed two Republicans, one to the war department and the other to the navy, because he knew they would go anywhere he wanted them to and because he thought their names would carry weight. They had both been favored by the party they deserted, and what distinction they had in public life had accrued from these favors. They rewarded their party by turning their backs on it and working against it, taking part in the conspiracy which was to pull off its biggest job in the Republican convention.

Mr. Roosevelt had tried to draw Mr. Landon into this network and had failed. Mr. Landon refused to do what Mr. Stimson and Mr. Knox did and he has denounced Mr. Willkie for the part he is playing now in aiding Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Hull, Mr. Stimson, and Mr. Knox in trying to force the war dictatorship bill thru congress.

Mr. Landon is among the Republicans who realize that they were taken in. So were nearly all of us. Such a vast and deep deception had been outside political experience. People didn't believe it was possible.

At Philadelphia it was plain enough that the galleries were filled with interventionists clamoring for Willkie, but the east is that way and most of these people had the money to spend and could easily make a large noise in the convention city. The Republican party was in an unwholesome atmosphere but nobody could suspect that manipulators had got into the convention itself and that Mr. Dewey was going to lose the nomination he had fairly won because the seaboard social and money caste had turned him down. He would have fought Mr. Roosevelt, and even if he had been defeated he would be fighting him now.

Of course we don't know the full story yet. We can see how certain things were done and what has come of them. We could see Mr. Roosevelt moving about, preceded and followed by emergencies and assuming the pose of a man too distracted by the peril to his country even to know that he was in a campaign or was asking for a third term. We could see Mr. Willkie also moving about from one position to another, surrendering them to his Democratic opponent, opposing not Mr. Roosevelt but the Republican leaders in congress, abandoning Republican principles and giving up the fighting points. He had already followed Mr. Stimson and Mr. Knox into the Roosevelt administration and we didn't know it.

No doubt he wanted to be President. No doubt he would have liked to have defeated Mr. Roosevelt if he could do so on a mere issue of personality. He might have made good on his pledge to create a different climate for business and private enterprise. We don't know. We do know now that the interventionists who want to make Mr. Roosevelt a war lord, even if they have to destroy the republic to do so, had placed an alternate in the election, not an opponent, and that even if they lost the man they preferred they would still have one who would suit their purposes.

Lincoln saw a similar conspiracy when Buchanan, in his inaugural, revealed his knowledge of what the Dred Scott decision was to be and, altho Lincoln could not prove the conspiracy in detail, he could see thru it. "We cannot absolutely know," he said, "that all these exact adaptations are the result of preconcert. But when we see a lot of framed timbers, different portions of which we know have been gotten out at different times and places and by different workmen—Stephen, Franklin, Roger, and James, for instance"—[Douglas, Pierce, Taney, and Buchanan] "and when we see these timbers joined together, and see they exactly make the frame of a house or a mill, all the tenons and mortises exactly fitting and all the lengths and proportions of the different pieces exactly adapted to their respective places, and not a piece too many or too few—not omitting even scaffolding—or, if a single piece be lacking, we can see the place in the frame exactly fitted and prepared to yet bring such a piece in—in such a case, we find it impossible to not believe that Stephen and Franklin and Roger and James all understood one another from the beginning, and all worked upon a common plan or draft drawn up before the first lick was struck."

We again see all the tenons and mortises exactly fitting and all the different pieces exactly adapted to their respective places by Franklin and Wendell and Henry and Frank and the others who came upon the scene, each with his piece of the framed timbers. The least honorable part taken in this was taken by Mr. Willkie. But he is out of the Republican party, if he ever was in it.

HUNGER IN FRANCE.

It is difficult to exaggerate the sufferings of the French people. In addition to all their other difficulties, they find themselves in one of the bitterest winters which has been recorded in western Europe in many years. Some of the details were included in a recent dispatch from The Tribune's correspondent at Vichy, Mr. David Darrah:

"Three weeks of intense cold has spread hunger and death and now flooded rivers bring the menace of another disaster. . . . Transportation is tied up and many small communities are isolated. . . . Near Toulouse and Grenoble wild animals, hungry and cold, are raiding fields and villages. . . . In Lyons it is announced that people are eating crows, squirrels, and hawks. . . . Green stuffs and vegetables have disappeared in Vichy. . . . Paris is reported to be receiving only 30 per cent of the normal supply of coal. In Lyons supplies are limited to 100 pounds a week, scarcely enough for the cook stoves. . . . Stores' stocks of woolen goods have been exhausted. . . . In all the towns funeral processions have become more numerous. Every day the newspapers tell of old people having succumbed to the cold. Many suicides from distress also are reported."

Forty million Frenchmen can be hungry and cold. The children can be and are undernourished. The facts cannot be denied and only those who seek to dodge their implications will attempt to deny them. Perhaps there are some Americans who will say that the French are suffering a just retribution for their failure to prepare against the German attack and to stem it when it came, but it is difficult to believe that this attitude is at all typical. If it is, Americans must cease to think of themselves as a generous, warm hearted people capable of sympathizing with distress and eager to relieve it.

What has happened to the French economy in recent months was outlined recently in the Economist of London. Because of the war considerably less than three-fourths of the wheat was harvested. Transportation has been gravely disorganized. In October the number of unemployed was estimated at 2 million because of the destruction of factories, the disappearance of foreign markets for characteristic French products, and the lack of imported raw materials.

France, said the Economist, "is down and very nearly out. Defeat has meant short commons in everything." A comparison between the French rations and those prevailing in Germany was offered as follows:

Weekly Rations in Ounces.

	Bread.	Meats.	Sugar.	Fats.	Coffee.
Greater Germany	80	17.50	8.0	9.5	3.5
France	87	12.75	4.5	3.5	3.0

It takes no profound knowledge of the science of dietetics to know that the quantity of food permitted is barely sufficient to sustain life and far from sufficient to maintain health even supposing that the poor have the means to buy the permitted amounts. A population so fed is destined to be swept by plagues and decimated. One of the great nations of the world is imperiled, a nation which befriended us at the most critical period in our history.

The sending of food and medicines to France need not mean a breaking of the blockade around Germany. That is said on the authority of Herbert Hoover, whose experience in feeding civilians in the conquered countries in the last war enables him to speak with authority. The shipments go one by one. If the Germans break faith, the shipments stop. The food which we may send to France will save life and preserve rationality in a people which otherwise might go mad with despair and thereby wreck what hope there is of a better Europe after the war.

If our government makes the right kind of appeal to the British government the blockade against France and the other conquered nations will be relaxed, as it was in 1914. Our government can ask this in the name of Christianity and human brotherhood. If we believe in these things we will act before it is too late.

A YOUNG MAN'S EXAMPLE.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Our editorial hat is off to Joseph Biondo, a 16 year old Detroiter who believes in paying more than lip service to safe driving. Suffering from a heart ailment which gives him "trouble with his legs," the lad has turned in his driver's license to Traffic Judge Thomas F. Maher. An accompanying letter states that he does not consider himself "fit to drive."

There's an object lesson. How many other motorists are there, of more years but less sense, who hide disabilities that make them equally unfit to drive? How many have the courage to put public safety before personal convenience? Not many, or young Joseph's story would not have been front page news.

FRONTIER ON THE OHIO.

Only a month ago a faithful reader wrote a reproachful letter, saying, "Hey, you, don't print anything more about the quaint old world charm of your birthplace, Madison, Ind. That's my favorite place for a restful week-end, and I don't want it turned into another Turkey Run."

* * *

But now we discover that the federal government is turning the region into an artillery proving ground. Five miles to the north, guns of all calibers will tear up the landscape, and peaceful Madison, under the bluffs of the Ohio river, will hear the reverberations of a practice blitzkrieg.

* * *

There will be more excitement in the old town than it has known since Morgan's raiding cavalrymen circled around it in 1863, and the home guard turned out to protect the altars of their sires. Even now it is overrun with officers, engineers, and other ralliers to the defense of the nation, lugging satchels full of blue prints and looking for rooms to rent. The merchants on Main street are rubbing their hands in glee. The guns back in the hills have not yet begun to speak, but Madison is having a boom—its first in 60 years.

* * *

We can't figure out why this site was chosen. Perhaps the administration wanted to make Elwood, Ind., jealous.

* * *

Every small city in Indiana has its literary tradition. Madison's includes Edward Eggleston and David Graham Phillips.

Wonder how some of our other favorite towns are faring in these bustling times. Hey, Galena, Ill., Chamberlain, S. D., Buffalo, Wyo., Deer Lodge, Mont., Vernal, Utah, Grinnell, Ia., Bucyrus, O., Murfreesboro, Tenn., Staunton, Va., Oxford, Pa., Bangor, Me., how'r yuh doin'?

TO A WINTER BLUEJAY.

I am a robber baron,
A gay freebooter, I;
Like a plummet blue I drop
Out of the frosty sky.
With my jaunty cap of feather,
My cape and my sword, I swear,
I'm the best of my clan,
A highwayman of the air.
The call of the creek and the woods
Is in my raucous shout;
I'm an arrant rogue, good sir,
And your grace I can do without.
I thieve the corn from the crib
And with flash of gray and blue
I brighten the wintry day
For stodgy folk like you. S'Amuser.

Party Girl Fills in at Bridge.

She was sitting disconsolately at a desk chewing upon a stub of pencil. "Nine and seven is 15," I heard her mutter.

"Sixteen," I corrected. "And isn't this rather early to be figuring out your income tax?"

"I'm trying to figure out how I'm going to live the next few weeks."

"Did you lose your purse?"

"No, I lost my shirt," she said gloomily. "To the Dragon Dowagers. I was just finishing lunch at the club yesterday when Mrs. Alexander P. Granite came up to me and said, 'Do you play contract? There are seven of us here and we need another to make up two tables.' I thought she said contact, and they are two entirely different games, you know."

"O, yes, I know. As different as kindergarten and college."

"Well, I didn't realize my mistake until we sat down to play. And then it was too late."

"Why didn't you just explain?" I asked.

"But I thought I could learn in a few hands," she sighed. "And you know my reputation for trying anything once. So I decided to do what Emily Post advises—'When in doubt as to what fork to use, watch your hostess'—so I did."

"Use a fork?"

"No, darling, I did exactly as Mrs. Granite did at the other table. When she passed, I passed. When she said 'One heart' I said 'One heart' and the same with something they called doubling and redoubling."

I began to laugh. "Tell me, what stakes did you play for?"

"They asked me if a quarter was all right and I said it was. I thought they meant two bits," she wailed, "instead of a quarter of a cent a point. So now I'm figuring . . . if I have a dinner date every night for the next two weeks and can wangle a week-end invitation I think I can keep from starving."

As I strolled out of the room I heard her adding "nine and seven is 15." Eugenia Gerlach Stein.

"Upon my soul, committed to the Tower?"
"No less, and shameful, too, it seems in us
To house up and disgrace a man whose power
Of mind has shown so large and luminous
From very youth with glory on us all.
For what? For taking of a paltry bribe,
Because of human weakness in his soul,
The common stain of all the earthy tribe.
Alack, that greatness being weighed cannot Outbalance with his vasty strength the prick
Of petty vanities, but he must blot
His proven nobler nature, being sick."

A blow to stagger any man's belief!"

KEEP THE IRON SUPPLY AT PAR.

Among the many minerals which we require, iron is one of the most vital. Unless it is taken in adequate amounts, anemia may ensue. Pallor of the cheeks and lips may be observed as characteristic signs of the disorder. The condition is not at all uncommon in infants, children, and after the onset of puberty in girls.

Most of us are aware that the red coloring matter of the blood [hemoglobin] embodies this metal. In fact, the oxygen carrying portion of the circulating fluid cannot be formed without it. When it is lacking, the red cells will gradually lose their ruby tinge and become pale. Copper is another indispensable ingredient, while some scientists believe that cobalt and manganese play equally essential parts. At any rate, when we encounter a drop in hemoglobin, our chief job is to supply the principal component—iron.

Now the body is manufacturing blood constantly, but it can perform efficiently only when we are well. For example, if the secretion of thyroid is deficient, or if there is a vitamin C shortage, the digestive functions suffer. The same is true in the presence of a chronic infection or disease of the kidneys. Two or three generations ago it was a standard rule among physicians to give a preparation of iron to every one whose renal apparatus was found to be impaired. But this has been found to be unnecessary as we can use only the inconsiderable portion which is absorbed. Therefore, but a very small ration will be called for. It has been estimated that there is somewhat less than one-tenth of an ounce circulating in the vessels. But when this percentage decreases even slightly it must be replaced, otherwise hemoglobin will not be produced.

How does the body dissipate iron? Clearly, every child needs it for growth, while every young mother demands an additional store for the developing babe. Then, too, during the nursing period some of it is lost with the breast milk. We should recall that nosebleed or other source of hemorrhage may discard just enough to create a deficit.

If we would keep well, therefore, we should see to it that a sufficient proportion is taken with the food, altho it is only a split fraction. This explains why every one should employ some of the iron containing edibles. This means beef, parsley, apple butter, liver, molasses, pistachio nuts, eggyolk, sweetbreads, watercress, raisins, apricots, etc., which are richly endowed. Lesser doses are furnished by spinach, figs, nuts, prunes, chicken, oatmeal, corn, turnip greens, sauerkraut, oysters, mushrooms, etc. It is far better to take this substance with our meals than to be obliged to resort to pills.

We must understand that bleeding indicates loss of iron. Even trivial oozing [as from hemorrhoids] that persists may serve to tip the scales in the wrong direction. Occasionally too little acid in the gastric juice will interfere with absorption and hence, in some cases, this material should be added to the daily menu. As a rule, the failure of certain stomach cells comes first. In consequence, digestion is less competent. Altho plenty of iron is available it can not be taken up by the very cells which are hungry for it.

The lesson of this discussion lies in the fact that we must not overlook or condone trivial hemorrhages, as no one can afford to squander his structural steel.

USE HIS BIKE?

Mrs. F. writes: My ten year old son had rheumatic fever two years ago. Recently he was given a two wheel bicycle and I wonder if this exercise will be too strenuous for him?

REPLY.

Not if he obeys your injunction to avoid exertion and fatigue. More than ordinary care should be exercised in preventing infection, such as colds. This means adequate clothing and warm, dry feet.

SLICING IT.

P. B. writes: Is it possible to have excess abdominal fat removed by surgery?

REPLY.

Yes, but a proper diet—plus exercise—is preferred. In skilled hands the cosmetic results of surgery may be satisfactory for a time. The lure of the table, however, may necessitate another operation at a later date.

BETRAYED.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—It should be made perfectly plain that all of the 22 million votes which Mr. Willkie claims "he" got were not for him or what he said. Mine and many million more were against Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Willkie was an accident who we hoped would turn out all right. Certainly on foreign policy he could only be the lesser of two evils. He might keep a promise; Mr. Roosevelt never had.

It seemed logical to vote against Mr. Roosevelt as a protest again gangsterism, hypocrisy, and incapability in government and the distinction of our traditional safeguards against excess government. James R. Nance.

A PRETTY PASS.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Things have certainly come to a pretty pass when a Socialist has to come forth to defend the principles of democracy against of all people, Mr. Wendell L. Willkie. I had my doubts about Mr. Willkie when he stole the Republican nomination in the first place—the whole business had a fishy aspect from beginning to end—but the defeated candidate's words tonight removed whatever doubt I had in my mind.

At the time of the Republican convention there were three outstanding candidates, Taft, Dewey, and Vandenberg. All of these men had declared themselves against war and any entaglements that would lead to war. The money boys didn't want such a President as these men would make. If Roosevelt should be defeated they wanted a man to beat him who would play the game their way. So they resurrected Mr. Willkie—opened their pocketbooks and went to work on the Republican convention.

Any man who thinks a convention can be stampeded by an unknown hog caller like Willkie without something funny going on behind the scenes doesn't know much about psychology. So Willkie was nominated. He put on a great show. He raved about Roosevelt's yearning for dictatorial powers—and tonight he said, "Give it to him." Dennis W. Scully.

DUPED.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Millions of Republicans see now that they were duped by selecting such a leader as Mr. Willkie. Why does Willkie indorse President Roosevelt's policy he so strongly opposed? Can any one tell me? Stanley Kolo.

A STOLEN VOTE.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—We have heard much regarding the vote stealing of the big city machines. Our opinion of men who indulge in such unpatriotic activities is not allowed in the public print.

But let us be fair. Why place a stigma on the names of Kelly, Nash, Hague, and Prendergast when a man like Wendell Willkie, thru behind the scene manipulations, is chosen leader of a fake crusade to "keep America free" and to "preserve the American way of life."

I charge that he stole my vote even tho it was freely cast for him on Nov. 5. Not mine alone but millions of others if the same percentage would hold for the nation as is evident from the unsolicited expressions of my friends, who like myself were among the suckers who gave of their time, money, and effort to promote the campaign.

He was not satisfied with rubbing salt into our wounds by upholding views which he condemned in the campaign; he steps out to insult our intelligence further at the Town Meeting of the Air by boasting of the number of votes he and Mr. R. received compared with the number Mr. Thomas received as indicating that the Thomas vote represented the whole number of people who are opposed to the present policy of the administration. Not only that, but he had to say it in an insulting manner which is in perfect harmony with the tactics of his new playmates.

Let him have his lollypop. The more he sucks on it the sooner it will be gone. He can then save the stick to remind him not to run again for fear that when the votes are counted the small vote that Mr. Thomas will poll will look large compared to his. Herbert C. Roer.

CLOSE THE RANKS!

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Why don't the delegates to the Republican convention of last year meet, each in their respective states and elect a man from their ranks as a delegate to a convention to be held in Chicago in the near future! This delegate could be empowered to cast the number of votes that that state had in the national convention. This convention would be called to choose a real leader of the party, now that Mr. Willkie has deserted to the side of the war mongers.

It is a tragic thing to see the party, which is so valiantly trying to keep this nation out of war, without a leader. The issues at stake are too great blindly to follow precedent. We cannot risk the lives of millions of our sons by leaving the Republican party without a leader.

It will require the utmost effort of the Republican party to keep a war-mad government and a power-mad government from destroying our liberties at home and our sons abroad. We need a leader, a real leaders, and we need him now.

David H. BallIet,
Member of the organizing board,
4th Ward Willkie Clubs.

CONSOLATION.

Park Ridge, Ill., Jan. 17.—Hearing Mr. Willkie last Thursday evening sanction full dictatorial powers for Mr. Roosevelt must have left quite an empty feeling with many who supported him in November. But, his belittling of Mr. Norman Thomas' election showing makes me thank God that he whom we considered the crusader and exponent of fair play was not elected our President.

John Bourke.

SENTIMENTS.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—I would like to say a few words about the distasteful type of greeting card that appeared this holiday season. I refer especially to the cards adorned with dog and cat and rabbit pictures and bearing so-called humorous lines about Christmas.

Christmas is not a subject for humor. It is filled with deep sentiment, and while cards for greetings do not necessarily have to be religious in character they should express something more dignified than wise cracks.

Greeting card makers are very short-sighted. They built an enormous business on sentiment and now are kicking away the ladder by which they rose.

INTEREST IN ESTATE.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man died in Indiana leaving no will. He was married twice. He had two children with his first wife. No children with the second wife.

Before he died he deeded a home to his second wife which he held in joint deed with his first wife before her death and [1] which came to him because his first wife left no will. He also had two other pieces of property, one in his name and the other a partnership with a relative.

2. Is the second wife entitled to one-third of the two pieces of real estate?

3. Could she force a sale and demand a third or is she entitled to only a third income as long as she lives and the two children get all when she dies? She also got $500 from the estate upon the death of her husband. C. L. R.

1. Her will could not have prevented him from taking as surviving joint tenant.

2. Yes, as to the one that was in his name. Your facts are not clear as to the "partnership."

3. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

JUDGES DISCLAIM BLAME FOR LOSS OF TAX REVENUE

Compelled to Cut Some Levies, Says Hasten.

Judges Erwin J. Hasten and Oscar E. Caplan of the Municipal court disclaimed responsibility yesterday for the annual loss of 20 million dollars by local governing bodies thru unpaid personal property taxes. Both judges are assigned to hear tax delinquency complaints.

Judge Hasten [top] and Judge Caplan.

County Assessor John S. Clark had said judges assigned to tax cases have been reducing assessments without authority and challenged the right of the Municipal court to hear assessment cases.

The two judges said that as a result of a Supreme court decision they have jurisdiction in cases involving taxes up to $1,000. Judge Hasten said the tax branch of the Municipal court was created several years ago by agreement of the assessor, the state's attorney, and the chief justice of the Municipal court.

Judge Tells of Reductions.

"Clark is doing a fine job in making the assessments," Judge Hasten said. "It's not his fault that we are compelled to reduce some of his valuations. He gets most of his information from income tax returns and he includes as personal property stock in local corporations which also are assessed on their personal property. We are compelled to eliminate such charges.

"Also, we act on sworn testimony, and if the evidence indicates that a person is being taxed too high we enter a compromise judgment with the consent of the state's attorney and on agreement of the person to pay the reduced amount. It's better to collect $100 on a compromise judgment than to enter a judgment for $200 which never will be paid."

"Why is it that such a judgment would not be paid?" Judge Hasten was asked.

Collection Effort Lacking.

"They just are not," the judge said. "Thousands of tax judgments are entered every year and nothing is done to collect on them."

Assessor Clark had said that the duty of collecting on the judgments rested with the county treasurer. He said the treasurer has the right to seize the belongings of a delinquent taxpayer.

Clark said County Treasurer John Toman has not made any seizures of private property to satisfy tax judgments.

Toman replied that the plan of levying on the goods of business concerns had been tried by several of his predecessors and it resulted only in additional trouble because much of the merchandize was on consignment or covered by chattel mortgages. He said the duty of collecting on judgments is the sheriff's, but that during the four years he was sheriff he never was asked to collect on a tax judgment.

"I am trying to work out a collection plan with a committee from the Association of Commerce," Toman said.

VANDALS WRECK OFFICES.

Police were looking yesterday for vandals who wrecked the offices of the Illinois Orthopedic company, a surgical supply concern at 25 North Wells street. Louis Friedman, the manager, reported that the intruders smashed show cases, upset desks, and swept stock off shelves. They took $25 from one desk, he said.

FOOD INDUSTRY SWARMS TO CITY FOR 22 PARLEYS

Expect 25,000 Delegates at Conventions.

Men and women who see that America gets fed were thronging into the city yesterday. They were the vangard of 25,000 delegates who will attend conventions this week of 22 organizations identified with growing, preparing, wholesaling and retailing food.

All of Chicago's hotels are expected to be crowded. The entire convention space at the Stevens hotel has been taken by two of the largest groups, the National Canners' association and the Canning Machinery and Supplies association. The canners will open their meetings today and the canning machinery men will begin their sessions tomorrow.

Expect Millions in Orders.

Delegates will give especial attention to the problems of the industry, and it is expected that orders totaling millions of dollars will be placed.

One of the main objectives of the industry will be to call the attention of the public to the independent grocer and the part he takes in the community and in the business of distribution.

Among the major conventions will be: United Buyers' corporation, Chicago Towers; United States Wholesale Grocers, Palmer house; National Association of Retail Grocers, Hotel Sherman, and the Independent Grocers' alliance, Knickerbocker hotel, and the National Retailer-Owned Grocers, Hotel Sherman.

Attend W-G-N Audition.

Leaders in the independent grocery field attended an audition at W-G-N yesterday of "Home Town," a radio program intended to tell the story of the independent merchant. The program was arranged by The Committee of January 19th, sponsored by the Independent Food Distributors' council.

The pioneer merchant who helped build the west was dramatized in the audition, which was directed by William A. Bacher.

SEIZED BY POLICE, TELLS DESERTION FROM MARINES

Richard Pennington Lewis, 22 years old, who said he is a member of a wealthy St. Paul, Minn., family and a deserter from the United States Marines, was in custody of the Chicago avenue police last night on a charge of passing more than a dozen bogus checks for between $200 and $300 in various hotels, night spots and taverns since Jan. 4.

Lewis said he used the money to have a good time as he was tired of service in the Marines. He said he joined the Marines a year ago and was stationed at San Diego, Cal., but decided to desert after a furlough ended last Dec. 23. Lewis told police he posed as a lieutenant in order to cash most of the checks. He was arrested after Raymond Dubow, 526 Addison street, a county employé, became suspicious when Lewis got him to cash a $10 check, then borrowed $10 and finally asked to borrow his watch.

Slum Clearance Is Urged as Health Measure.

What does Chicago need most to go ahead in 1941? What does your business or institution need to go ahead? What can you do to help Chicago? What can Chicago do to help you? Leaders in Chicago business and public life are being asked these questions. The following story is the second of a series giving the answers.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Chicago educational leaders yesterday listed four steps they hold necessary to the city's progress in 1941. They are:

1. A sweeping slum clearance program to benefit the city's health, the pride of its citizens, and to aid in straightening out the muddle of city and county finance.

2. Prompt attention to and solution of the transportation problem.

3. Development of leadership in Chicago to meet the major challenges presented by democracy and defense.

4. Development of a moral élite to bring about a rejuvenation in the city's sense of values, with more attention to spiritual values.

Need for Understanding Cited.

The educators said that Chicago's institutions need most the understanding and support of the city in order to make a maximum contribution toward progress in 1941 and the years thereafter. They also said increased economic security for Chicago's citizens would aid education's effort to forge ahead.

What can educational institutions do to aid Chicago in 1941? President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago in answer to this question developed his idea that democracy and defense offer the major challenges of the new year.

"As the capital of the middle west, traditionally responsive to critical situations, Chicago must lead the nation in meeting these challenges," he said. "Higher education is symbolic of democracy and the life the nation now seeks to defend and preserve. From higher education stems the strength to do so. The University of Chicago and the city's other higher institutions are prepared to put forth their utmost effort to bring this strength to its peak."

Trained Leaders Is Goal.

H. T. Heald, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology, said his institution is prepared to provide the "right kind of training for the youth of Chicago who will become the future leaders of our business and industry."

"The institute is prepared," he said, "to make a greater contribution in terms of science and engineering research, which will have a bearing upon the future welfare of both our citizens and nation. It will turn out graduates, as in the past, equipped by their training to apply their knowledge to the establishment of new industries and the improvement of old."

The Rev. M. J. O'Connell, C. M., president of De Paul university, said that institution can, as it has in the past, give to Chicago "more than 1,000 young men and women trained not only in a field of choice but also trained to value the heritage of citizenship and to appreciate the democratic system that has given them the opportunities that are theirs."

What Chicago Can Do.

What can Chicago do to help the educational institutions in 1941?

"Anything that helps to solve the social problems of Chicago must benefit every individual and every institution in the city," said Heald. "Chicago can help the universities chiefly by forging ahead in the economic field so as to give every one of these young men and women an opportunity to show his or her worth. A little more appreciation of what the private universities are doing for Chicago [on the part of business and industry] would be encouraging."

Dr. Hutchins said Chicago can assist the University of Chicago most by helping to bring to a successful conclusion in 1941 the institution's 50th anniversary campaign for 12 million dollars.

"The university has everything it needs to help Chicago and the country except the resources which will guarantee its continued effectiveness," he said.

Exhibition Near

(Story in adjoining column.)

Head of giant bull which stood in front of the palace of Darius, king of Persia, some 2,400 years ago. It will be placed on permanent exhibition soon in Oriental institute at university.

1,725 Sought by Air Corps for Training at Rantoul

The air corps technical school at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., is seeking 1,725 men for training as airplane mechanics, welders, machinists, and metal workers, air corps headquarters announced yesterday. Students will receive $21 a month, plus clothing, and living expenses. Applicants must be between 18 and 35 years old, single with no dependents, and have a high school education or its equivalent. Enlistment is for three years.

PROPAGANDA? IT WAS HEFTY BULL TO OLD PERSIANS

U. of C. to Display 11 Ton Relic of 500 B. C.

The head of a giant stone bull that stood in front of the palace of Darius, king of Persia, some 2,400 years ago, and other objects dug from the ruins of the city of Persepolis by University of Chicago archaeologists in the last 10 years, will go on permanent exhibition Monday, Feb. 3, in the new Iranian room of the university's Oriental institute.

Dr. John A. Wilson, institute director, said the bull's head, which is believed to be the largest of its kind in the country, is made of hard black limestone, highly polished. It is about 10 feet high from the tip of its head, lowered as in charging, to the base of the neck, and approximately six feet wide. It weighs 11 tons.

Just a Bit of Propaganda.

"It was a 'propaganda' piece," Dr. Wilson said yesterday, "and was intended to show how powerful the Persian empire was. Persia, the best organized state prior to the Roman empire, extended at that time [500 B. C.] from Ethiopia to Central Asia and from India to Greece. The king, who was considered a god, was at the head of the government, but delegated many of his powers. There were good roads and communication was good."

Most of the treasures excavated are of stone, Dr. Wilson explained, because the palace, begun by Darius and completed by his son, Xerxes, was burned down by Alexander the Great in 331 B. C.

Sculptures to Be Shown.

Other excavated treasures to be exhibited include part of a human headed feathered bull, a fluted column from the palace and sculptures.

The excavations were begun in 1931 with permission of the government of Iran. Prof. E. F. Schmidt of the University of Chicago headed the expedition as field director.

A preview of the Iranian room, first new room to be opened at the institute in 10 years, will be given invited guests Sunday, Feb. 2.

20 ROUTED BY FIRE.

Twenty persons were forced to flee to the street by a fire which started yesterday in the basement of a two-flat brick building at 1030 South Winchester avenue, and spread to the two upper floors.

Colds Have Launched A "BLITZKRIEG"!!

Watch Out For Your Family!

NOW with epidemic colds spreading their misery—be careful, be as careful as you can. Do everything possible to help safeguard your family against the "blitzkrieg". There are certain time-tested precautions you can take that may save you and yours a great deal of sickness, worry and expense.

First of all, get plenty of rest, good sound sleep. Eat simple but nourishing food—vegetables and fresh fruits if available. Drink plenty of water and keep elimination regular. Take some exercise every day—preferably outdoors in clean, fresh air. Then let trustworthy Vicks help you.

Use These Two Time-Tested Treatments Whenever Needed

To Help Prevent Many Colds from Developing

At the first sniffle, sneeze or sign of nasal irritation—put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing. Because Va-tro-nol is expressly designed to help your natural defenses against colds in the nose and upper throat where most colds start.

NOTE: If by chance you have a head cold, a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up both sides of the nose should quickly relieve misery. It helps soothe irritation, shrink swollen membranes and clear out mucus-clogged nasal passages. As a result it makes breathing freer and easier and brings you comfort.

TIME-TESTED VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

To Quickly Relieve Miseries of Developed Colds

When a cold gets by all precautions and causes muscular soreness or tightness, spells of coughing or irritation in the upper bronchial tubes, relieve such misery the improved Vicks way—with a 3-minute VapoRub Massage.

Massage VapoRub for 3 minutes on IMPORTANT RIB-AREA OF BACK as well as throat and chest. Spread a thick layer over chest and cover up. This more thorough treatment actually increases the important STIMULATING-POULTICE action and PENETRATING-VAPOR action of VapoRub. And makes this famous old family standby work faster and longer to relieve distress of colds.

TIME-TESTED VICKS VAPORUB

REMEMBER THIS . . . Both Va-tro-nol and VapoRub have been thoroughly tested through years of constant use in millions of homes. If the miserable symptoms of the cold are not relieved promptly—or if more serious trouble seems to threaten—call in your family physician right away.

Mr. Abend couldn't collect his prize!

Somewhere in the general vicinity of Chiang Kai-shek's capital of Chungking, New York Times correspondent Hallet Abend was busy dodging bombs when the Overseas Press Club honored him with an award "for outstanding service in reporting the Sino-Japanese War."

Months have gone by and Mr. Abend's prize still hasn't caught up with him. There is the geography of China, for one thing; the Japanese army for another—and the big job he has had to do in the Far East.

Kudos—collected and uncollectable—are almost standard equipment with Times correspondents. Two runners-up to Mr. Abend for this award are Times staff members—both of them Pulitzer Prize winners . . . an indication of what lies behind The New York Times unique position in the newspaper world!

OUR BIGGEST FOE IS LACK OF JOBS, DECLARES GREEN

Governor Urges Training of Nation's Indigent.

Unemployment is the main foe on the American battle front and it must be beaten to preserve the American way of life, Gov. Dwight H. Green declared last night in his first speech since his inauguration a week ago. He suggested that victory may be found in training indigents for useful jobs.

Illinois' new Republican governor spoke at the 41st annual meeting of the Jewish Charities in the Standard club, 320 Plymouth court. He praised the organization for its peak record of having aided 130,00 persons during 1940.

Creating a national defense to make America impregnable from outside attack is not enough, Gov. Green said. The staggering cost of the relief and WPA program has become the state's major financial problem, but this represents only part of the burden to be borne by taxpayers because of vast expenditures by federal and local governments for similar purposes, he said.

Self-Support Termed Key.

"It is axiomatic that we cannot permit any one to starve in a land of plenty," Green said. "But it is equally true that to preserve our American way of life, our American freedom, and our American hope, we must restore this part of our population to normal life and the independence of self-support.

"Equally important as our armed defense program is the building of our defense against attacks from within. Strange philosophies of hate and intolerance are spreading thru the world, preying on the minds of frustrated and helpless men and women. We know that no alien 'ism' can menace us so long as we preserve our American way of equality and opportunity for all.

"To do that, we must bring to our idle population not only relief but ultimately relief from the necessity of relief. That is the greatest task confronting us today."

Intelligence Held Hope.

No panacea will be found, but the persistent use of intelligence by citizens eventually can remedy our economic ills, he said.

"The ultimate victory in this effort may require rehabilitation programs to train large numbers of persons for employment in other capacities than those in which they have formerly served," Green declared. "It will require a united effort to keep alive the will to work and the individual incentive to master obstacles which have been the true strength of American progress."

Almost a million persons in Illinois are dependent upon five major public assistance programs, he said. Nearly all of these are dependent because of failure to provide employment or adequate chance to save for old age, Green asserted.

H. T. Spiesberger, treasurer of the Jewish Charities, submitted a budget for 1941 calling for $1,609,000.

POLICEMEN PICK 5 NEW OFFICERS OF ASSOCIATION

Officers of the Policemen's Benevolent association were chosen yesterday at the annual election held in the Skyline club, 188 West Randolph street. New officers elected are Thomas J. Morris of the detective bureau, president, who defeated Thomas P. Heaphy of the traffic division; John Coolahan of Austin station, vice president; Edward J. McCabe of Wabash avenue station, treasurer; Roger E. Murphy of the bureau of records, financial secretary, and Charles Riley of Racine station, member of finance board. Emmett Shaughnessy of Stockyards station was reelected recording secretary. The association has 6,661 members, both active and retired members of the police department.

Husband Accused by Wife Is Held After Her Death

Joseph Komakowski, 38 years old, 1540 Augusta boulevard, a sheet metal worker, was held at the Racine avenue police station last night following the death yesterday in County hospital of his wife, Theresa, 34. In a death bed statement Mrs. Komakowski said she had been beaten by her husband. Police said Komakowski admitted he had struck his wife several times Friday when she interrupted a drinking party.

Can't Open His Window; Burglar Can—and Does

King City, Mo., Jan. 19 [Special].—All last summer Del Auldridge tried unsuccessfully to open one of the windows of his service station to let in more fresh air. Now he'd like to know who opened it to take a grease gun worth $55, two new tires, and a candy bar vending machine.

BARRETT HEWS 'DEADWOOD' OUT OF STATE OFFICE

Plans Staff to Help F. B. I. Fight Sabotage.

Attorney General George F. Barrett, voicing a determination to raise his department to a new peak of efficiency, said yesterday that he has started to clear out "political deadwood" and that he is establishing a division to help the federal bureau of investigation combat sabotage.

One of those fired by Barrett is Sidney Deutsch, who was sponsored by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey, west side Democratic chieftain. Barrett said Deutsch was on the pay roll at $3,240 a year but spent most of his time operating a currency exchange on the first floor of the building at 160 North La Salle street, where the attorney general's office occupies the 20th floor.

"Pitch In," Barrett Orders.

"Nominally this man was a sales tax case investigator," Barrett said. "Actually he ran a currency exchange. This is an exmple of why the work was not being done. I will have no room for any man or woman who will not pitch in and do the state's business.

"The first thing I did upon taking office was to get a list of the cases which had been assigned to assistant attorneys general, and to order them to submit reports on each case. I found some had only five cases while others had 80 or 90. Some were doing nothing while the others were overloaded."

Barrett said there is more than enough work for all employés and that it must be done.

High Standards to Be Set.

The new attorney general declared he intends to employ men who measure up to the standards set by the assistants of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey in New York.

"Adding to the normal work of the office is the necessity that we establish a division to cooperate with the F. B. I. in protecting our defense structure," Barrett said. "Evidence has been disclosed that there are persons in Illinois who are a menace to our industrial plants, our railroads, and other defense equipment."

Barrett said investigators in the new division will be primarily responsible to him, but will give all possible aid to the F. B. I. in tracing down reports of subversive activities.

AVIATOR RESCUES TWO FISHERMEN ON AN ICE FLOE IN GREEN BAY

Escanaba, Mich., Jan. 19 (AP).—A ski equipped plane manned by a reserve officer in the army air corps went to the rescue today of two commercial fishermen adrift on a huge ice floe in Green Bay, off Portage Point.

The flyer, Lieut. Walter Arntzen of Escanaba, declared it was "no trick at all" to land his plane on the drifting ice and take off again with his two passengers. The floe was two miles long and about a mile wide.

The fishermen, Earl Johnson and Hugo Lindquist, had been engaged in fishing thru a hole in the ice when the big floe broke loose from shore. They had drifted out a quarter of a mile before either noticed it.

An observer who saw their plight notified a lighthouse keeper, who summoned aid from Escanaba. Arntzen has gained considerable fame for his mercy flights with medical aid or to remove stricken persons from isolated places to city hospitals.

RUSSIAN, FACING DEPORTATION BY U. S., FOUND DEAD

A carpenter known as Joseph Broby, about 35 years old, was found dead yesterday in a dunes cottage three miles northwest of Chesterton, Ind., where he had lived for the last four months. Detective Arthur Keller of the Indiana state police said he believed the man had died of natural causes, altho Keller was investigating the possibility of suicide.

Papers found in Brobny's cottage indicated he was a Russian, and that immigration authorities at St. Paul, Minn., were threatening to deport him. Two Chicago addresses were found among his papers, but persons living at those addresses did not know him.

HOW TO GET A LOAN TO PAY UP OLD BILLS

You can get $100 to pay old debts or other expenses if you can repay $6.43 a month for 20 months . . .
No endorsers or guarantors needed
. . . A quick, simple way to borrow

HAVE unusual expenses caught you short of ready cash? Have you old bills that you must get paid? If you have a steady job, there's a simple way for you to borrow the cash you need. You may then repay your loan in convenient monthly installments.

Suppose that you need $100. Find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payments you wish to make. Twelve monthly installments of $9.77 each, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full. The cost of your loan, in this case, averages less than five cents a day.

You may prefer smaller payments. As little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan. Note that the sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. You can borrow $25 for two months, for instance, for only 96c.

Simple to get a loan

All you do to apply for your loan is to acquaint us with your problem. Loans are made on furniture, car or note. It is unnecessary to bring friends or relatives to sign the loan papers with you. This spares you the embarrassment of asking outsiders to act as endorsers. We help you keep your money affairs private by not asking friends or relatives about your credit. Our service is planned so that you may borrow conveniently and simply—and repay in installments which fit your own income.

Borrow for less

Payments in the table include all charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law. Every customer gets the benefit of this rate—whether new customer or former borrower.

Fair Treatment

If you should get sick or lose your job while paying on your loan, we will show you every consideration. Last year we foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 20,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Please feel free to phone or visit us at any time. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

WE GUARANTEE the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay, when payments are made on schedule. Could Cleopatra Drink a Pearl with Stomach Acid Pains?
An intriguing story of Cleopatra is the one where an admirer praised the beauty of two of her pearls, whereupon she dropped one into a glass of wine and drank it. She would hardly have done this had she suffered after-eating pains. Those who are distressed with stomach acid pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid should try a 25c box of Udga Tablets. They must help or money refunded. At drug stores everywhere.

Rachmaninoff Recital Brings Back Liszt Age

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Periods in music are all mixed up. Sergei Rachmaninoff is alive and well in this year of 1941 and his prowess as composer and pianist entitles him to rank among the three or four most eminent of modern musicians. Yet it is easier to think of him as "romantic" than as "modern"—perhaps as the last of the great romantics. His vivid imagination, his high degree of subjectivity, his love for rich and somber colorings—these are among the things which ally him with the 19th century rather than the 20th.

The mammoth audience which filled and overflowed the Auditorium yesterday for his recital heard not an exponent of 1941 musical fashions, but an eloquent emissary from another age. The best way to describe what Mr. Rachmaninoff did is to say that he played the music of Chopin and Liszt as if those composers were still alive and as if the esthetic principles they represent had never been challenged.

For instance, the Chopin waltz which began the encore group had a delicate, languishing, decadent quality which was not spoiled—as it would be in the case of some present day pianists—by any tendency to treat these qualities as if they were quaint or amusing. And in the Liszt Rhapsody Mr. Rachmaninoff was not a patronizing antiquarian, but a man who could toss off a phrase in the grand manner with all the conviction of Liszt himself.

Played by a man who so obviously believed in what he was doing, the music of the romantic era stood forth again in all its color and beauty and regained all of its old power to move and to delight. As Mr. Rachmaninoff's persuasive right hand sang the melody of the Sonetto del Petrarca only the most casehardened cynic could still refuse traffic with the glowing world it represented.

The pianist was in royal form. His taxing program began with Mozart and Bach, bowed to Beethoven [the "Appasionata" Sonata], and ended with Chopin, Rachmaninoff, and Liszt. To it, in response to insistent applause, he added an encore group consisting of two Chopin waltzes, a transcription of the opening song in Schubert's "Miller Maid" cycle, and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee."

Thruout the entire afternoon Mr. Rachmaninoff's vitality and imagination never flagged. One could recognize and admire these qualities even where one might differ with his interpretations—in the Bach A Minor Fugue, for instance, where sonority and horizontal feeling seemed to be sacrificed often to speed and sharp accents, and in Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso," where the playing [in the coda, at least] was too fast for the ear to grasp.

ENGAGEMENTS

From Toledo, O., comes romantic news involving a young Chicagoan. Mr. and Mrs. Cletus V. Wolfe of Westmoreland are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to Robert Alan James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. James of Euclid avenue.

Both young people are in their senior years at college—Miss Wolfe at Wellesley and her fiancé at Harvard. They plan to be married early in the summer.

At a tea in their home in Evanston on Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. De Wolfe announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Elaine, to Ronald P. Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Campbell of Ironwood, Mich. Miss De Wolfe is a graduate of Connecticut College for Women. Mr. Campbell was graduated from the Michigan School of Mining and Technology. No date has been set for the wedding.

Expected Moment.

A little girl ran in to her mother with the question her mother had been expecting for some time.

"Where did I come from Mummy?" she asked. Her mother hesitatingly launched into the story of life, with reference to birds, and bees, and flowers.

"I just wondered," said her child when she had finished. "Susie, across the street, says she came from Memphis."

HOUSE CLEANING.

Today Dame Winter bustled in,
A housewife trim and neat;
She swept the grass and shook the trees
And tidied up the street . . .
Then fastened white slip covers over everything
To keep the landscape clean until the spring.

Esther Linder, Chicago musician who will play the Third Prokofieff concerto as guest soloist with the Illinois Symphony orchestra this evening, has played the work with Prokofieff himself. Three years ago the Russian composer visited Miss Linder's home and the twin grand pianos in her home responded to an evening of Prokofieff.

Grownups' Toys.

Possibly the very last Christmas display in Chicago to go down is the one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Thul in the 3900 block on North Hamilton avenue. Each year the Christmas tree—and the miniature village that is the Thuls' hobby stays in their living room until Feb. 7, Mrs. Thul's birthday. Mrs. Thul builds her own houses for the village from cheese boxes and paints them herself. There is a farm with barns and farm buildings. An addition this year was a house for brooding hens made from a powder box and match sticks. An electric train runs thru the village.

$300,000 Campaign Opened for Budget of United Charities

The United Charities of Chicago needs $300,000 in voluntary gifts if it is to carry out its 1941 program, Solomon B. Smith, treasurer, announced yesterday.

Estimates made by the reviewing committee of the Community Fund show that the agency will need $900,000 during 1941 for its share of the city's welfare program. Two-thirds of this is being furnished by the Community Fund, but the remainder must come thru gifts. A drive to obtain these was started Friday and will continue thru February.

"The United Charities' help is concentrated on families whose affairs have reached a crisis," Mr. Smith said.

Lange and Civic Orchestra Give First Concert

Overture, "Fingal's Cave" . . . Mendelssohn
First three movements from Symphony No. 2, G minor . . . . . Mahler
[First and third movements played for the first time in Chicago.]
Symphony No. 85, B-flat major "The Queen of France" . . . . . Haydn
Overture to "Rienzi" . . . . . Wagner

BY CECIL SMITH.

After three and a half months of intensive practical and scholastic work the 103 young instrumentalists of the Civic orchestra emerged from privacy yesterday afternoon to play their first Orchestra hall concert of the season under the direction of Hans Lange.

The program was a taxing one in two opposite directions. On one hand it included three movements of Mahler's Second symphony, requiring from the players a rich post-Wagnerian sonority of tone and also the accomplishment with some bravado of many difficult bits of individual virtuoso playing. The Haydn symphony, "The Queen of France," on the other hand, demanded fineness of tone and discretion of style, with a disdain for all the spread-eagle oratory which was so essential to the Mahler symphony.

Admitting that the orchestra does not yet play as well as it will next month, the music sounded nearly always creditable and at times quite exciting. In the big dramatic passages of the Mahler symphony the brass section proved to be one of the best the Civic orchestra has ever had. The strings achieved warmth of tone without sacrificing purity of intonation or rhythmic exactness. For the most part the wood winds also sounded well, altho a fuller body of tone would sometimes have been desirable.

Restrained effects are always harder to make than grandiose ones, and the Haydn symphony, under the stress of public performances, fell a little short of the best playing I had heard in rehearsal. Even tho the accentuation and bowing of the strings was astonishingly clean, the first violinists—no doubt out of sheer eagerness—showed a considerable tendency to push ahead of Mr. Lange's tempo in passages that were not technically difficult. Of course, even professional violinists often strain at the leash in this same way, but the procedure does not make for calm in the minds of the audience or the conductor.

The Mahler symphony, tho rather long and intensely subjective in form and expression, was worth getting to know. All of Mahler's symphonic music is curiously loose and episodic in construction, and the Second symphony is no exception. There is, however, a sufficient quantity of fresh and attractive material to hold the interest thruout.

Mr. Lange's interpretation of the Mahler work revealed an extremely sensitive ear for its highly individual texture, and presented the music with, at least, as much cohesiveness as the composer put in the score in the first place. The Haydn symphony likewise was well conceived as to tempo and texture, tho like all Mr. Lange's Haydn the performance overemphasized the element of strict metrical accent.

Capes, Be They Long or Short, Are High Style

BY REA SEEGER.

It's a bit of fashion inside history that despite persistent efforts on the part of the designers, capes haven't clicked every time they've been promoted. This season it's a different story.

Capes have definitely become fashion. In the resort collections the cape costumes were the favorites, whether they were long to cover completely a costume or whether they were short, swinging clear of the hiplines. Two piece suits teamed with a dashing long cape suddenly became the spotlight stealer in every fashion show. Lined or unlined, nothing unpacked in years took the fancy of the shoppers like these smart cape models.

It takes the enveloping yardage of an evening cape really to cover any of the extremely full skirted dance and party gowns, so the younger set wear capes wherever they dash around at night. Military affairs with braid encrusted, square cut shoulder lines, and high, snappy military collars are prime favorites, especially when they are made of navy blue wool, lined with scarlet.

Capes of fur have been revived to wear with suits and coat dresses. Long capes of novelty furs have become the smart accents for spectator sports clothes and for travel wardrobes. Most of such models are reversible with wool fabrics as the contrasting material with the short or fluffy furs.

All the fashion news trickling thru about spring clothes foretells almost an unprecedented furor over and about capes. Street dresses are completed with short, dashing capes; two piece suits of dark and light shades also boast the complementary third piece of a companion cape. Summer capes will be unlined and made of all kinds of material from thin wool to silk. Even the swim suits slide under capes of novelty materials. These were, of course, featured in the resort fashion shows.

Betty Armour Hollins Gives Birth to a Son

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. PATRICK A. VALENTINE can start on her winter trip any day now. Months ago she said she was making no plans to leave Chicago for her usual trip to Florida or to Arizona until she had welcomed her first great-grandchild. The baby was born Saturday night to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Vanderbilt Hollins Jr. The baby, a boy, and his youthful mother, the former Betty Armour, are at the Passavant hospital, both doing nicely.

Peter Armour Hollins is the name of the newest member of the large and well known Armour clan. Peter, for no one in particular, but just because his parents like the name. The baby is a great-great-grandchild of the first Philip D. Armour. Mrs. Valentine was Mrs. Philip Armour Jr. before she was married to Mr. Valentine. The baby's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armour, who have another daughter, Leola, and three sons, Lester Jr., Stanton, and Vernon.

News of the arrival of their nephew was sent to Vernon and Stanton at St. Mark's school in Southborough, Mass., and to Lester Jr. at Yale. Leola is perhaps the most interested of the family in the new baby, for she is only 2½ years old, so she and her nephew will be playmates as soon as he is old enough to play.

Mr. Hollins, who came to Chicago from New York to live several years ago, is the son of Mrs. Henry Morgan and Gerald V. Hollins of New York.

Another baby of distinguished Chicago lineage was born yesterday in the Passavant hospital. He is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Miller. The baby has been named Henry Giles Miller III., after his great-uncle, Henry G. Miller of Evanston. The baby is a great-great-grandson of Roswell B. Mason, mayor of Chicago at the time of the great fire. Mrs. Miller is the former Odessa Shipfer of Winnetka.

Ross J. Beatty Jr. Named M. F. H. of Longmeadow.

When Clark J. Lawrence rides next fall with the Longmeadow Hounds it will be not as joint master of fox hounds, a post which he has held eight years, but as a member of the field.

First announcement of Mr. Lawrence's resignation as M. F. H. is being made this week, altho the board of directors of the Longmeadow Hounds has known it since Jan. 9. Ross J. Beatty Jr. has been elected to fill his place. Denison B. Hull continues as the other joint master.

The duties of M. F. H. are arduous, including complete charge of the hounds, the country, and all the hunts. That Mr. Lawrence discharged them faithfully is shown in a resolution of the board thanking him for his guidance in bringing the sport to the peak of its development in the Longmeadow country.

The Longmeadow sportsmen ride every Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday morning during the early fall. Later in the season they switch to Wednesday and Saturday afternoons and Monday mornings.

Ernest S. Ballard is hunt secretary, and Freeman J. Wood is treasurer.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 19.—Sunday—An early arrival in Phoenix by train and I realize I am farther from Hollywood than I thought when I have to set my watch ahead to mountain time. It has been good, rolling into town, to see vast green fields and trees that don't look like studio props. Edward McNamara, the actor, at the station to meet me, and so to Clarence Budington Kelland's ranch, and after breakfast on a tour of the place. Bud's enormous date trees, which weighed three tons apiece when they were transplanted, will bear next year, with the crop bringing a dollar a pound.

Monday—Up at 10:30 to find that Kelland has already finished a chapter on his new novel and is ready for play. What a guy! He has been writing novels longer than any living American except Booth Tarkington, I think, and he must be the country's most prolific fictioneer. He burns when a stranger identifies him with Information Please, or the movies, "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "Arizona." . . . We play golf, and with a generous handicap I win, and then back to the ranch for much gab about actors and newspapermen.

Tuesday—By plane back to Hollywood and to watch Jimmy Stewart and Paulette Goddard do a number for Jimmy Roosevelt's "Pot o' Gold." Preparations are being made for a junket to Mexico City for the world premiere of this one. . . . In the evening to Sol Kaplin's piano recital.

Wednesday—A long day at the typewriter to make up for the escape to Phoenix and in the evening to see Lombard and Montgomery in Hitchcock's "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." It's a light farce, deftly handled by stars and director, but not so funny and fast moving as I had hoped it would be. It runs out of story before it runs out of film. But it does prove that Gene Raymond is a good comedian whose film comeback is overdue.

Thursday—To Paramount for a gander at the "Night in Lisbon" and "Caught in the Draft" sets—the only two pictures in production there. Studios have not yet got up full steam for 1941. David Butler, skipper of "Draft," is a unique director. Most directors have an assistant to carry the script around. De Mille even has a chair carrier. Butler has made the simple discovery that he can tear out of the script the few pages he will be working on during the day and stuff them into his pocket. And Buddy De Sylva is unusual among producers because he follows the making of his picture by visiting the set daily. He grins and says, however, that he never bothers Butler. And he's working afternoons on Bing Crosby's next, "Birth of the Blues."

Friday—The Warners have called Whitney Bolton, a Hollywood correspondent, asking him if they can use his name. Seems they have a new and lovely young actress, y-clept Irma Salzman, and they think Whitney Bolton would be a fine monicker for a gal star. So he's going to have lunch with her and give her the double-o, and if he approves Hollywood will have a new movie name.

Saturday—To Death Valley by way of Lone Pine and the Panamints, to kibitz on the location shots being made by Jim Cagney and Bette Davis for "The Bride Came C. O. D."

Good morning!

I wouldn't say that it "has everything," but I do aver that it has plenty to intrigue the average fan. . . . Like this:

It has sunken treasure in the Pacific. It has a spy angle. It has Anita Louise as a brave—and beautiful!—San Francisco newspaper reporter retained by the government to ferret out the whys and wherefores of a mysterious submarine known to be plying certain neutral waters.

It has a most interesting young man as hero. Bruce Bennett is the name and he's more or less a stranger—tho you may remember seeing him in "The Secret Seven" and "Before I Hang." His present rôle is his best up to date, for he is very much in character as a daring playboy who sets sail on his own freighter to recover the aforementioned sunken treasure. . . . Others have tried for it but failed because of the depth at which it lies. But Paul Sinclair goes forth with confidence—he having invented a certain diving apparatus that he feels sure will win the day for him. [He'd offered it to the government which wouldn't take it until it had been tested. . . . WELL. . . . !]

Let's see—what else does this movie possess to insure popularity? . . . O, yes, some very grand acting by Oscar O'Shea as the freighter Retriever's captain and by villains, sailors, etc. . . . Also—smart direction.

The piece isn't long, but it does spin along! And your interest with it!

Who Is This Girl?

By Helen Topping Miller

[Copyright 1941: By Helen Topping Miller.]

SYNOPSIS.

Dining at the apartment of his employer, Harp Greenlee, a sheepman who has grown soft with city ways, Dan McCullough, manager of the ranch, San Mateo, meets Storm, whom Harp introduces as his niece, but Mac has heard him introduce so many women as his nieces that he wonders just who Storm is. Beatrice Abney, also a guest at Harp's, asks Mac about her ex-husband, an artist who is drinking himself to death near San Mateo. Mac tells Harp and Steel Dunlap, Harp's lawyer, that the ranch needs money to fight Humphrey Dane, who is trying to shut off the ranch water and is suspected of stealing their sheep. The next day Mac meets Storm again and finds himself falling in love with her.

INSTALMENT VII.

DETERMINED MAN.

Mac got up obediently, if a little rigidly. He led Storm between the tables and out to the small polished space where a few couples were dancing. He put his arm around her and felt her body close to him, but every muscle in him was wooden and his blood was ice and bitterness.

He turned and stepped mechanically, somehow keeping time, and when she looked up into his face with a quick little smile, he turned his eyes away.

Her hair was near to his lips and the clean fragrance of it made him a little sick. Her hand was light in his own and she danced without effort, drifting almost, as his dream had drifted, as it drifted now—forever out of his life.

And he said, "You do fine. You're swell." Feeling stupid and dulled and tormented by the inadequacy of the words. And the foolish music went on and on, in empty sentimental cadences, till McCullough's nerves were stretched to agony.

"I'd better go back now," she said, "I'm supposed to be there when Harp comes in. Pay the girl—but don't come with me, please, Mac."

But a stony grimness was upon him. "I am coming with you," he was brusque, "I'm coming all the way."

"O, no." She looked a little frightened. She fastened the dark, lovely fur at her throat and pulled on the bright brown gloves that matched the gamin little hat. "Please don't come, Mac. He—might not understand. He's unpleasant some times."

"I," said McCullough, stuffing his change into a pocket and dragging on his hat with a jerk, "can be unpleasant, too. We seem to get along on unpleasantness, Harp and I. I'm going with you."

He flagged a taxi and they rode in silence for a dozen blocks. Storm's face was a pale, cameo profile against the lighted darkness of the streets. McCullough's hands were tightened to fists in the pockets of his overcoat. His teeth clamped till his jaws ached and he made himself relax and breathe slowly and try to get some kind of order into the tumult that was in his mind.

They did not speak when they got out at the apartment building. McCullough paid the fare and tipped the uniformed man who opened the door for them.

"Has Mr. Greenlee come in?" he asked the girl at the desk.

"Yes, sir. He went up about an hour ago."

Storm stood rigidly in a corner of the elevator as they ascended, her eyes down, but he saw how tightly her fingers were clenched on her purse.

She went ahead of him without a word, down the carpeted corridor where expensive paintings made bright rectangles on the dark, paneled walls. Then, outside the library door, she stopped and faced McCullough, and he saw that her face was very pale.

"What—happened to us, Mac?" she asked in a whisper. "Why do you look—like that?"

He did not touch her. His brow had darkened and his mouth was set.

She turned away and opened a door at the end of the hall, closing it behind her, without a word. Moran came from the rear of the apartment, extended a hand for McCullough's hat.

"Never mind—I'll keep it," snapped McCullough. "Where's Greenlee?"

"In there, Mr. Mac. Shall I tell him you are here?"

"No. Go away. I want to talk to him alone."

McCullough flung open the door of the library. His back was stiff as he marched in. He closed the door carefully.

The room was dim, except for the rosy flickering of the firelight on the walls, the lamps had not been lighted. The dusk that lay all about a small bright area before the fire was somehow very quiet. But Harp Greenlee was there. He sat in a deep chair drawn up to the fire, his heavy head with the hair thinning at the top, visible over the back of the chair.

One hand lay relaxed on the arm, and near it on a little table was a whisky bottle, half emptied, and an empty glass.

McCullough stood, silently, just inside the door, looking at the top of Harp Greenlee's head, and as always when he looked at Harp he was finding it difficult to hold on to his anger. Harp looked so tired, so defenseless, sitting there.

Quickly McCullough summoned every memory of Harp that he had hated, every dubious scene, every moment of disgust. Gertrude, shrill and blondined, wine on her breath, laughing too much as old Bart Williams tried to put her on a horse. Harp's fatuous face, watching Gertrude, his mouth too loose, his eyes a little bleared, so that they missed the poorly concealed looks of contempt on the brown faces of Lank Parrish and Plume Terrell, the top hand, and grizzled old Bart Williams himself.

Nights at San Mateo, when Mom Terrell, Plume's wife, worked in the kitchen of the ranch house, her apron strings tight, and her motherly face set into a frigid and disapproving mask as she basted big roasts from prime yearlings that had been slaughtered and made her famous horseradish sauce, and watched with disgusted eyes the cases of champagne and expensive liquors that Plantamora unloaded from the ranch truck and carried in.

And mornings, when the ranch house was still and the men rode away, letting their dry mouths loosen into amused grins as soon as they were out of sight, and the Mexican house boy carried out armfuls of empty bottles and bits of broken glass and heaps of cigaret butts and all the other dubious débris of Harp's nights of dissipation.

McCullough kept himself remembering these things, almost fiercely kept them moving like pictures behind his eyes, to keep away other memories, less grim. Memories of blue dusks in the ragged hills, and dark nights when the stars were near and bright and the smoke of little fires drifted up in spirals like pink feathers; nights when Harp had sat, huncered down and amiable, a khaki shirt open at his neck, his boots scuffed and darkened across the instep with the leather strap of his spurs, a big hat pushed back and his eyes looking far across that untamed country while he talked, long and well, of his dreams for San Mateo.

And memories, too, of days when McCullough himself, a green and cocksure boy out of college, full of impatient plans and half-baked ideas, had been taken in hand by Harp Greenlee, fathered and befriended, rewarded for loyalty and enthusiastic service by a gift of responsibility and authority that was denied to older men.

He could not let himself think of Harp's generosity, his kindnesses now. He had to push aside that big-souled Harp Greenlee who belonged to the west, to the rough hills and the chapparal and the green river valley of San Mateo.

He had to go on hating Harp, feeling his hands clench and his jaw muscles bulge and water come into his mouth, had to keep this fierce fury alive till he wrung from Harp's lips the things he had to know. Until Harp answered the questions McCullough knew that he had probably no right on earth to ask, questions which in the code of their west he would not have dared ask, he had to be outraged and grim.

He flung off his overcoat with a sudden movement, tossed it on a chair. It slid to the floor and he heard a faint clank. That was his can of tobacco falling out of the pocket, but he did not turn to pick it up. He put his hat down and waited for Harp to move and look at him, but Harp sat still, slumped a little, facing the fire, his hand lying out idly on the arm of the chair.

"Harp," he flung the word into the quiet room like a grenade, "I want to talk to you."

Baked beans are as American as apple pie and as well liked. Gourmets among bean eaters want the old fashioned, long baked, molasses and salt pork variety, the kind grandmother made in an earthenware bean pot. They aren't fond of the tomatoed kind of baked beans.

Grandma soaked navy beans overnight, then simmered them most of the morning and served bean soup for lunch. Then she added molasses, onion, salt pork, and seasonings and turned what was left into the bean pot, to bake slowly until suppertime. By then the beans were dark brown and savory and filled the house with a tantalizing fragrance.

To do justice to this old fashioned recipe, one should have a bean pot. Bean pots still may be found in many stores, and they certainly aren't expensive.

Old-Fashioned Baked Beans.

[Serves Six.]

2 cups navy beans
Salted water
½ pound salt pork
¼ cup molasses
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 or 2 onions

Soak the beans overnight in water to cover. Drain, add more water and two teaspoons of salt, and simmer gently until skins loosen, which will take several hours. Slice off a piece of the salt pork and place it in the bottom of the bean pot. Add the beans [if necessary, drain off some of the liquid; probably they'll have absorbed most of the water]. Mix molasses and mustard with a cup of the drained bean liquid, or a cup of boiling water, and pour over the beans. Press an onion or two into the beans, and place the rest of the salt pork, gashed in half inch strips, rind side up, on top. Cover and bake slowly, 250-300 degrees, for five or six hours, uncovering the bean pot during the last hour of cooking.

There are some commercially prepared canned baked beans which seem to be the real thing, dark brown beans with a molasses flavor. They taste good baked in a casserole until hot, with a parboiled onion or two and a few strips of bacon across the top of the dish.

And there are good commercial brown breads which come in cans. Everybody knows that old fashioned baked beans simply must be accompanied by brown bread. Next best to steaming the bread oneself is boiling a can of brown bread until heated thru.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

This and that:

Chemists really burn the midnight oil to make women happy. They are striving now, it is said, to incorporate a woman's favorite perfume into a perspiration check.

Along the same lines, there's talk of perfume fragrances being infused into lingerie fabrics. If this happens a woman could have her lingerie scented with her favorite perfume.

Sounds a little farfetched, but even a wig can go gray. One woman, who has worn a couple of them for years, keeps a keen eye on their color, and whenever she feels that the hair, if it were growing on her own head, would be turning gray—or grayer—she takes in a wig to a skilled craftsman and has the dark hair replaced with strands of gray.

We look for a new dominating spirit of retaliation on the part of the wives whose husbands received a gift bottle of that perfume for men that we told you about a while ago. Masculine as it is, it promises to turn the tide of sly pilfering that has been going on for years in the very best households. Now the little woman will be the borrower and she'll have a perfect right to be smug about it.

We don't know, of course, but we're told that dyed red hair betrays itself under television. So, if you have red hair, and were not born with it, and care who knows about it, be careful! FLORENCE MURDOCH.

Mrs. Ayres Boal has gone to New York to be with her sister, Mrs. George B. Massey, who is suffering from severe shock incurred in an automobile accident while she and her husband were driving east ten days ago.

It's a toss-up as to which event will be the most exciting for Mrs. E. Harrison Manierre during her visit in Washington, D. C., this week for the inauguration. It's a safe bet, however, that she'll get her biggest thrill out of the fact that her son, Cyrus, is marching in one of the four companies from West Point which will take part in the festivities. Mrs. Manierre was in New York last week and will visit her cousins, Mrs. Charles Bromwell and Lady Sidney Bailey, in Washington, on her way home.

Mrs. Freeman Hinckley's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Lithiby, have made Paris, France, their home for years, but they were unable to get passage to England before the invaders swept in. The Lithibys and their 14-year old daughter and 10-year old son are now safe in bomb torn London, where Mr. Lithiby is connected with the Bank of England.

The Hinckleys have kept their ears pressed to their radio every Thursday afternoon for weeks in the hope of hearing Mrs. Lithiby's voice on the weekly program of the American Eagle club of London, but so far have not been able to get the station. Mrs. Lithiby is active in canteen work and is largely responsible for the origin of the American Eagle group, which aids the some 5,000 American volunteers serving with the British forces.

There's much bartering of cold climes for warm, sunny ones going on, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. are making their trade-in on Jan. 29 when they leave for their home at Vero Beach, Fla. Mrs. Madlener plans to stay in Florida until the middle of April.

Frock in Junior Sizes

FROCK IN JUNIOR SIZES.

A youthful frock with snug buttoned bodice and front shirring in the skirt is one all the junior size figures can wear with charm and grace. This pattern provides, too, a brief bolero to complete the costume, and amusing embroidery for it [at no extra cost]. This pretty outfit makes up as well in crêpe as it does in sheer woolen.

Style No. 2799 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19; 29, 31, 33, 35, and 37 inch bust measurements. Size 15 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of contrasting for collar and ¼ yard for pockets.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the winter Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

Numerology By Evelyn Holmes

Jan. 20, 1941.

Universal day—Finish up all the little details of whatever projects you were working on last week.

Vocations—Those born on the 20th have the diplomatic, friendly two as a vocation number with the added force of the zero, raising it to a more service-giving number. It is also a musical number so it is not surprising to find Irene Dunne and Josef Hofmann in this group. The "homey," friendliness of this number is very well expressed thru Edgar A. Guest. It is not an exceedingly ambitious number and so we find those born on this day modest and cooperative, filling positions that require patience and handling of detail. Sometimes we find politicians with this birthdate, but they are not the dynamic leaders, and if they try to be world-beaters often must accept defeat later. Two has never been fortunate for royalty or rulers. Napoleon was one example and it is significant that a modern self-styled Napoleon was born on April 20.

Care You Give Child Health Builds Future

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

Every once in a while we mothers need a little extra inspiration, or perhaps it's perspective. We go on conscientiously with the routine that safeguards the children's health, watching their rest, their food, their outdoor life, and we spend a lot of energy on it. Then along comes some one who shakes our faith in the importance of all these things.

"Look at those Smith children," a friend says. "Could you find a healthier lot, and is anybody going thru all the motions you do to bring them up? They eat whatever happens to be easy, or what the grownups like. They've never had a physical examination in their lives."

Don't let that bother you. Perhaps the Smith children are healthy looking now. What you're doing is building not only for the present but for the future. You are laying the corner stones, digging deep foundations for the future health of your children.

When you study the matter of feeding them, when you see that they have plenty of rest and sleep and outdoor play, when you have them examined by the doctor every now and then, you are going deep and looking far ahead. You know, if Mrs. Smith doesn't, that many of the ills of grown persons, poor teeth, poor posture, foot trouble, bone diseases, nervous conditions, headaches, digestive troubles, skin troubles, and serious diseases of the vital organs are traceable to improper care in childhood.

Nearly 500 Orchids Put on Exhibition at Park Conservatory

A magnificent display of nearly 500 orchids was opened to the public yesterday at the Lincoln park conservatory, where it will continue on exhibition daily without charge for a month.

The exhibit, the largest in the Chicago area for more than 25 years, contains such beautiful species as the moth orchid, the calico orchid, the vinelike Dendrobiums from the orient, and 50 small purple Laelias in several varieties, one of which is believed to be the only one of its kind in America. It also includes almost 150 large purple Cattleyas and Cattleya hybrids and 300 green lady slippers [Cypripedium].

The show, part of the Chicago park district's $50,000 orchid collection, stems from a gift of 2,500 plants in 1,000 varieites made to the park in 1906 by H. Gordon Selfridge, now of London, England.

Due to the Public's enthusiastic acceptance of this new idea in entertainment this extra performance at 2:00 Friday Night (Saturday Morning) was necessary. We will continue this extra Friday performance hereafter.

Get yourself comfortable in Chicago. I have taken up your option as well as that of the whole cast of "Gay New Orleans." Thanks to you and every one at the Theatre-Cafe for helping make amusement history.

Glad you like Chicago—Chicago certainly likes you.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

The eloquence of silence has been extolled in romantic novels and philosophic treatises. But nowhere, I venture to say, can silence—as represented by that little word "pass"—be more profitable than at the contract table. Of course, to be profitable it must be understood!

♠ 10 5
♥ Q 10 3 2
♦ 10 6 4

WEST
♠ 7
♥ 5
♦ Q 7 5 3 2
♣ Q J 8 6 4 2

EAST
♠ K 6 3 2
♥ A K J 9 4 3
♦ K 9
♣ 10

SOUTH
♠ A Q J 9 8 4
♦ A J 8
♣ A K

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	Pass	2 hearts
3 spades	Pass	Pass	4 hearts
Pass	Pass	Pass

When North made his final pass, South had to exercise every ounce of control to keep himself from committing homicide. And, indeed, altho I am not a bloodthirsty soul, I think South should have been permitted a small amount of mayhem. North had failed miserably in reading and responding to one of the most beautiful of all bidding weapons, namely, the forcing pass. North obviously felt that his very poor hand warranted no action at all. But let us consider the situation carefully.

South, vulnerable, had opened the bidding and East, after two passes, had, instead of doubling, merely reopened the bidding with two hearts. Now South, knowing that his own partner had a hand too weak to keep the bidding open on the first round, had voluntarily rebid his spades to the three level. West, who had taken no action over the one spade, was unable to raise hearts or make any constructive bid of his own. East had then bid four hearts, which in the light of his previous bid could not be a sound bid. The chances were overwhelming that East was merely trying to "boost" the opponents to a spot where he could take care of them.

South, who had been not only willing but anxious to contract for nine tricks, surely could have stretched a point and bid four spades if he thought there was any real danger of the opponents making their four heart contract. His pass, therefore, could not have shown inability to go further and, obviously, he was merely asking North whether he preferred to play at four spades or to defend against four hearts doubled. As between these two, North's preference obviously should have been the latter.

Finally, there was no reason for North to fear that his heart honors could be picked up by successive finesses—the bidding had practically guaranteed there would not be two entries in dummy, which would be required for this purpose.

Ordinary defensive methods, involving the removal of dummy's one trump, held East to one diamond and five heart tricks, and thus he was down four tricks. North's timidity resulted in only a 200 point penalty instead of the 700 points he should have collected thru the application of simple logic.

BOY SETS WORLD RECORD IN SILVER SKATES

BLACKHAWKS TIE BRUINS, 4-4, IN UPHILL BATTLE

Hergesheimer's Shot Brings Deadlock.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

A crowd of 17,306, including several hundred standees, last night fluctuated thru thrills and chills as the Blackhawks twice absorbed two goal deficits to effect a 4 to 4 overtime tie with the high scoring Boston Bruins in a National Hockey league battle in Chicago Stadium.

Despite the deadlock the Hawks dropped to fifth place behind the Rangers who beat Detroit.

Art Wiebe and Doug Bentley scored goals in a span of 37 seconds after the 15 minute mark in the first period to balance two goals the Bruins had made after the 12 minute mark of the session.

Second Standoff for Goalies.

The Bruins, who have scored 90 goals this season to 61 for the Hawks scored twice in the second period, and the 4 to 2 lead thus achieved persisted until 12:54 of the final regular period, when George Allen closed the gap. Phil Hergesheimer socked home the tying score with a minute and 40 seconds of the regular time remaining. The scoreless overtime then followed with the Bruins apparently happy to settle for a tie.

It was the second major league standoff in which those two fine goalie grads of Eveleth [Minn.] High school have performed. Sammy Lo Presti made his big league debut against Frank Brimsek and the Bruins in Boston on Jan. 5 and emerged with a 2 to 2 deadlock.

Scoreless Until 12:09.

There wasn't a goal by either side until Art Jackson, assisted by Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer scored in 12:09 while Earl Seibert was off for tripping. Goalie Lo Presti had kicked away shots by Schmidt and Bauer, then sprawled in an effort to smother the puck. Something akin to a sob went up from the big crowd when Crawford picked it out of the pileup in front of the cage and lifted it into the unguarded nets.

Some three minutes after the first Boston goal Roy Conacher made the score 2 to 0. Conacher broke along the left boards and called for a long lateral that caught the Hawks defense completely out of position. He picked up the pass and with no opposition, beat Lo Presti with a mean oblique shot.

Hawks Go to It.

The time of the second Boston goal was 15:45, and exactly one minute later the Hawks had cut the lead in two. Thirty-seven seconds after their first goal the Hawks tallied again to tie.

The first Chicago goal was a long, hard one by Wiebe from his left boards, eight feet inside the blue line. Cully Dahlstrom and Doug Bentley, earned assists. The time was 16:45. At the 17:00 mark Doug Bentley,

Mungo's Sure Fire Ball Will Blaze Anew

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 19 (AP).—Come summer, Van Lingle Mungo is confident his famous fireball once again will be blazing like the midday sun.

Van Lingle Mungo.

His 1941 contract already signed, the 29 year old Brooklyn right hander said today the specialists at Johns Hopkins had fixed his salary arm. He added that he was gunning for nothing less than a starter's rôle.

"I'll be good for at least 250 innings this summer," he asserted. "Right now, I feel better than I have in three years. That arm hasn't bothered me since the operation last season.

Visions Regular Turn.

"I'll be shooting for 20 victories, but I know I'll get in 250 innings," he added.

Ahead of His Teammates.

Mungo is getting down to serious training well ahead of the remainder of the Dodger squad by lobbing 'em across to the students at Joe Stripp's baseball school.

The fact that Mungo has accepted his contract as tendered, in contrast with his explosive salary arguments in previous years, is interpreted in the baseball colony here as an indication of his strong desire to get back in winning form.

3 QUINTETS STILL LOOK FOR FIRST BIG TEN VICTORY

Three Western conference basketball squads—Northwestern, Michigan, and Chicago—will try again tonight to win a Big Ten game. The Wildcats, defeated in overtime Saturday night on their home court by Illinois, will meet Iowa in Iowa City. Wisconsin comes to the University of Chicago fieldhouse and Minnesota moves to Michigan.

The Gophers whipped Chicago Saturday, 35 to 24, for their second conference victory. Wisconsin's triumph over Michigan Saturday indicates that Minnesota should master the Wolverines since the Northmen already have beaten the Badgers. Iowa holds a victory over Minnesota.

Will Continue Experiment.

Against Minnesota tonight Coach Bennie Oosterbaan's experiment of using Jim Grissen at one forward position probably will be carried on by Michigan despite the fact that Grissen failed to score a field goal Saturday against Wisconsin. His performance was better, however, than those of other forwards since Bob Fitzgerald, a regular, was put out by illness.

Sophomore Mel Comin also may play a larger part in Michigan's game with the Gophers. When Jim Mandler, regular center, acquired three personal fouls early in Saturday's contest, Comin replaced him and scored 11 points.

Leaders Still Idle.

The undefeated Big Ten leaders, Ohio State and Indiana, still are idle in the conference, altho the Buckeyes see action Saturday at Wisconsin. Ohio State met Duquesne Saturday, however, and became the first quintet to defeat the previously unbeaten Dukes. Tonight in Pittsburgh De Paul's touring Blue Demons will learn if they can duplicate the triumph.

By their victory over Northwestern the Illini definitely have established themselves as within striking distance of the leaders. Indiana defeated Illinois, but Illinois has beaten Purdue, Michigan, and Northwestern. The Wildcats had a splendid opportunity to stop the Illini Saturday night, for they overcame a 13 to 8 deficit in the first half to lead, 21 to 18. Moreover, they built up a seven point advantage and went into the final minute of play leading, 36 to 32.

Harold Shapiro's two field goals, the second, after a brilliant individual defensive play, tied the score. In the thrilling overtime period Illinois won, 42 to 41, but only after Clarence Hasse, who was fouled a second before the gun ended play, missed the first of two free throws that might have deadlocked the score again.

Loses to First Three Teams.

Northwestern now has the unique and disastrous distinction of having lost to the first three teams in the standings. The Wildcats may never play a better game than they did against Illinois, for it was sufficient to match any conference quintet with the possible exception of Indiana.

Gene Englund, with 11 points, paced Wisconsin's third victory in four games. The Badgers' superior height was a decisive factor, for it meant a greater number of scoring opportunities.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

If Paul Brown, who used a great high school coaching record as a springboard to the Western conference, does as well as Bob Zuppke of Illinois, who used the same technique at Oak Park High school, Ohio State football fans will have no complaint. . . . Wonder if there was any truth in the report that the 1940 Buckeye eleven went on a sitdown strike just before the Michigan game and agreed to leave the locker room only because of the players' high regard for Coach Francis Schmidt? . . . The Cubs have in production their helpful personality guide, which reveals all the players like hunting and fishing except Rookie Bob Sturgeon, whose hobby is orchestra records. . . . Tales of John Kimbrough's eccentricities have cooled the Chicago Cardinals on their No. 1 National Football league draftee. . . . Michigan has a freshman football center named Merv Pregulman who will crowd Bob Ingalls, a junior, for the starting job next fall. . . . Pacific Coast conference football receipts for the Los Angeles Coliseum took a $5,000 drop during the 1939 season as compared with 1938, and a similar slump will be recorded, it is said, when the 1940 figures are released. . . . Jim Blewett, whose place on the U. C. L. A. coaching staff has been taken by the Bears' Bernie Masterson, had four more years to go on his contract, but he preferred to return to high school ranks where the pressure isn't so heavy. . . . Tom Harmon's last high school game at Gary resulted in a 40 to 0 victory and he repeated the experience when Michigan whipped Ohio State, 40 to 0, in his farewell as a collegian. . . . Clark Shaughnessy, Stanford's coach of the year, will visit in Chicago tomorrow and Wednesday.

Art Rooney, who shares the ownership of the Philadelphia Eagles with Bert Bell, will continue to live in Pittsburgh, but will commute to Philadelphia week-ends during the football season. . . . Maj. Biff Jones, Nebraska football coach, is trying to forget about T formations and such on a motor trip thru Oklahoma, Texas, and Louisiana. . . . He will return to his office Feb. 1. . . . Dr. F. C. Allen, basketball coach at the University of Kansas, will lose four of his five regulars next spring, but he has one of the best freshman squads in the university's history. . . . In case you hunt mountain lions for recreation, you may be interested in the technique of Ralph Kaufman of Ely, Nev., who helped chase a lion into a clump of bushes, grabbed the beast by the tail and held on until friends could wrap a tarpaulin around the catch. . . . Ellsworth Vines says golf is harder to master than tennis. . . . Wes Fry, Northwestern's back field coach, has been appointed manager of Abbott hall, new dormitory on the university's Chicago campus. . . . He will continue, however, to assist Lynn Waldorf in the development of the Wildcats' football squad.

And Loud.

And, O, I can remember even now
The soft "good evening" that I heard you say.
I hurried to your grandma's for I knew
That things were topsy turvy in my breast,
No one had ever stirred them up but you,
And only you, I felt, could bring them rest;
And like the big bad wolf I growled and sighed

TOKLE LEAPS 194 FEET TO RETAIN NORGE SKI TITLE

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Torger Tokle of New York, a handsome Norwegian skiier who since his arrival in the United States a year ago has discovered that winning championships is just as easy as ordering smorgasbord, yesterday added another Chicago title to his collection. Ten thousand watched Tokle accomplish two brilliant leaps in perfect form to win the 35th annual Norge Ski club ski tournament. It was the second successive year that he had come down the Norge club's huge steel slide near Fox River Grove to a championship.

Tokle, who triumphed in 19 out of 22 meets last year, soared 194 feet in his first attempt, then added an effort of 189 feet. His first leap was a foot short of the hill record he established last season. Tokle equaled his record in an exhibition leap after regular competition in the four classes had been concluded. The unofficial slide record is 201 feet, set by the late Paul Bietila three years ago.

Norwegians Have Trouble.

Five of the seven Norwegian aviators, on leave from their training base in Toronto, Ont., were among Tokle's rivals in the class A event, but they found air pockets after shooting down the slide and failed to distinguish themselves. The two others, entered in class B, also discovered that American hills are difficult to conquer, and the title in the division went to Waino Mantyla of Ishpeming, Mich., who had jumps of 173 and 167 feet.

The Norwegian quintet in the class A competition included Rolf Berg, Stein Sem, Kaare Anthonsen, Erling Jorgensen and Finn Jespersen. Sem proved to be the best of the group, winning sixth place with leaps of 168 and 171 feet. The Norwegian class B entrants were Einar Strand and Erik Paulseth, who finished far behind the leaders. Strand fell on his first attempt after completing a 136 foot leap. Berg, Jorgensen and Jespersen also failed to stand up after landing on the hill.

Badger Is Second.

Walter Bietila, representing the University of Wisconsin, took second place in class A with leaps of 177 and 180 feet. His brother, Roy, also a competitor in the event, suffered a slight head injury after jumping 172 feet and was taken to the Norwegian-American hospital last night. Another Bietila, Ralph, captured the class C title with leaps of 166 and 170 feet. Point standings:

Revolta Wins Over Cooper in Coast Golf

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 19 (AP).—John Revolta of Evanston, Ill., won the $5,000 San Francisco match play open golf tournament today by defeating Harry Cooper of Chicago, 7 and 6, in the 36 hole finals. The victory was worth $1,000 to Revolta. Cooper received $500.

John Revolta.

The match was played in a downpour of rain. Practically every green was a miniature lake and water stood a foot deep on one fairway.

After finishing 3 up on the first 18, Revolta won the 19th with a birdie 4 to go 4 up. Cooper won back a hole when Revolta missed the green on the 21st for a bogey 5, but Revolta went 4 up again by dropping a 4 footer for a birdie 3 on the 23d.

Uses Niblic on Green.

Revolta made it 5 up with a par 4 on the 24th, where Cooper missed the green on his second shot. A 15 foot putt for a par 4 gave Revolta a 6 up lead and he went 7 up at the 27th with a par 5.

Cooper was short on his third and missed a 6 foot putt for a half. The green was covered with water and Revolta used a mashie niblic on his first putt, nearly jumping the ball into the hole.

Wins With Par 4.

They halved the 28th in par 4's. Cooper won the 29th with a birdie 4, sinking a 3 foot putt while Revolta was missing a 4 footer. Revolta made it 7 up again, however, and closed out the match with a par 4 on the 30th.

FAHRENBACH'S 1:21.4 SHATTERS HALF MILE MARK

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Donald Fahrenbach of Chicago's Catholic Youth organization broke the world record for a half mile for junior boys yesterday afternoon on the Waveland field rink in the 24th Silver Skates program sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. Fahrenbach, whose brother Jerry won the juvenile title, skated the half mile in 1 minute 21 4-10 seconds.

The former world mark was made by a Chicagoan, Wilbur Marks, racing at Lake Placid, N. Y., 11 years ago.

The throng, which occupied every vantage point and even jammed the windows of the fieldhouse several hundred feet distant, saw climax piled on climax as the midwest's finest skaters, supported by teams from Cleveland, O., as well as from Milwaukee, Cedar Rapids, Ia., and St. Louis, fought for Silver Skates, most prized award in speed skating.

Miller Disqualified.

The men's senior championship race of two miles was won by Bernie Cannata of the C. Y. O., after Lowell Miller, of the same team, was disqualified for fouling on the last lap. As these two, and others in the star-studded field, sped for the finish line, Miller grabbed Cannata around the waist as the latter tried to take the lead on the turn into the stretch.

Leo Freisinger also representing the C. Y. O., and Del Lamb of Milwaukee, who divided speed skating honors in the national and North American meets last year, made strong showings. Freisinger, since winning the intermediate Silver Skates in 1933, has been unable to shake a jinx, and yesterday his best was second place. Lamb was fifth. Third place went to Steve Gadus of the C. Y. O., Gerald Guttormsen of Kenosha, Wis., was fourth, and John Tennant of the Elgin Skating association came in sixth.

Freisinger Just Made It.

Freisinger was handicapped, no doubt, by lack of thoro training because of recent illness, by his race Saturday in the east and an air trip from New York which landed him at the Waveland rink after the preliminaries had started at 1 o'clock.

Miller's disqualification was ordered by Gen. John V. Clinnin, referee, after the unanimous report of three patrol judges and the chief judge of the finish, Earl W. Solem.

The Catholic Youth skaters won the Walter Eckersall memorial trophy with 410 points. The C. Y. O. now has two legs on the current trophy which will become its permanent property with another victory. Northwest Skating club was second with 210 points. Fourteen teams placed in the scoring and five states were represented.

Fahrenbach Wins by 25 Yards.

Jim Ready of Cleveland made the early pace in Fahrenbach's record race. On the final lap Donald jumped to the front in a perfectly timed spurt and held his sprint to the blue line. He won by 25 yards from Leo Seroka of Kenosha, Wis., and Frank Brilando, Farragut High school, who won chromium and bronze skates.

Ready faltered in the stretch and finished fourth, receiving a silver medal. Previously these boys had been awarded gold medals in Friday's qualifying trials which sent 51 boys and girls in the four age classes under 16 years to the semi-finals and championships.

Bessie Laga, Barrett club, won a neck and neck stretch sprint from Ann Vitaska, C. Y. O., when Ann fell just before the finish line. Miss Laga skated the mile final in the near record time of 3:42.8. Virginia Baum of St. Louis, who was one of four outstanding stars to fall in this title Derby, won the gold medal for leading the greatest number of laps. Miss Baum also finished third.

Shirley Klaris, who finally finished sixth, and Alice [Sid] Steffen, a former winner in the intermediate class in 1937, also fell.

Wisconsin Boy Wins.

Chet Seroka of Kenosha, Wis., won the boys' intermediate Silver Skates. He finished half a stroke ahead of Marvin Thomson of the Northwest Skating club. Thomson was second in the same kind of a driving finish last year. He won the boys' juvenile title in 1935. Bob Syvertsen of Cleveland, who won the lap prize in the mile race, at one time seemed to have an insurmountable lead, but he tired rapidly and finished sixth.

Loraine [Bunny] Lawler, junior Silver Skates champion in 1936 and national champion last year, won the girls' intermediate Derby. She won by 20 yards. The girls' junior champion is Bernice Melewski, West Allis, Wis., who took the lead at the starter's signal and won the quarter mile by 30 yards.

Becker Takes a Spill.

Glenn Chadima, Cedar Rapids, Ia., won the boys' midget championship for youngsters under 12 years of age. Allen Becker of the Barrett A. C. led all the way, but fell five yards from the finish line. He finished fourth and was passed by Scotty Wallace, Northwest, and Roy Parker, Pierce playground.

Young Fahrenbach's record is ample evidence of the perfect racing conditions that greeted one of the largest fields of contestants in the eight Derbies on the program. Veteran officials, who have seen all 24 Silver Skates, which comprise the nation's largest and widest known speed skating events, said the ice was perfect. A capacity throng of autoists utilized every parking space on the lake front field, and thousands track.

Second Triumph for C. Y. O.

Pete Miller (right), coach of the Catholic Youth Organization skating team, receives the Walter Eckersall memorial trophy from Gen. John V. Clinnin, referee of the 24th annual Silver Skates Derbies held yesterday in Waveland park. The trophy goes annually to the team scoring the most points. The C. Y. O. has won two legs and will gain permanent possession with another victory. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

St. Jerome Is Beaten, 24-23, by Ascension

Several undefeated teams met in yesterday's play in the Catholic Youth Organization Basketball league and when the firing had subsided several ties for division leads had been broken.

At St. George gym in Evanston, Ascension seniors scored their fourth consecutive triumph and took the division lead when they conquered unbeaten St. Jerome, 24 to 23. Also in Evanston, St. Francis waged an exciting see-saw duel for three overtime periods before finally downing St. Athanasius, 33 to 31.

At St. Sylvester gym the four Hoffman brothers—George, Jimmy, Leonard, and Tony—continued their winning ways for Annunciation senior by accounting for all except 12 points in a 67 to 20 triumph over St. Hyacinth. St. Veronica defeated St. Bartholomew seniors, 30 to 26, for its fourth straight victory to stay even with Annunciation.

DATES FOR THREE POSTPONED ICE DERBIES FIXED

Officials of the Illinois Skating association yesterday held a meeting to set dates for three postponed Derbies. All will be held during February starting with the Catholic Order of Foresters Derby, Feb. 1; state championships at Glen Ellyn Feb. 2, and the 48th annual Northwest Sporting club city championships Feb. 9 in Humboldt park.

The Tilden Skating club will hold its meet next Sunday afternoon in Jackson park.

Paul Lewin of Chicago, competing in his first world's three cushion billiard tournament, yesterday stole the show in Bensinger's arena as the 31 day marathon completed its first week. Lewin required only 42 innings to defeat Art Rubin of Brooklyn, 50 to 35.

Lewin put a sudden end to the match by scoring 15 points in the last three innings, including a nine in the 41st. The Chicagoan tied the best previous mark of 42 innings set by Rubin earlier in the tourney when he defeated Jake Schaefer.

Denton Victor Over Kenney.

Tiff Denton of Kansas City, former world champion, defeated Len Kenney of Chicago, 50 to 41, in 60 innings in the final game of the night. It was Kenney's sixth straight defeat, his only consolation being the fact that he ran eight for his highest mark in the tournament as well as the high run of the match.

Jake Schaefer, who finished as runner-up to Willie Hoppe in the 1940 tournament, opened the evening session by defeating Irving Crane of Livonia, N. Y., 50 to 41, in 53 innings.

John Fitzpatrick of Los Angeles, Cal., opened the afternoon's play by defeating Clarence Jackson of Detroit, 50 to 40.

Fitzpatrick Runs 6.

Jackson, 59 year old veteran of many tournaments, led at various times and was more consistent in consecutive inning scoring, but Fitzpatrick got his in clusters. Fitzpatrick wound up the match by running six in the 50th and one in the 51st inning. The six was his best, while Jackson had a string of five as his top run.

Turiello to Give Bolden 6 Lbs. in Match Tonight

Saverio Turiello, welterweight of Milan, Italy, will meet a middleweight in Nate Bolden, 1937 Intercity Golden Gloves winner, in a 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace streets, tonight. This doesn't disturb the experienced Turiello, however, because he conquered Ossie Harris, Pittsburgh middleweight, on Sept. 16.

Turiello, who is 30 years old, expects to be at 150 pounds against Bolden. At that rate, Nate will outweigh his chunky opponent 6 pounds. Supporting matches:

Frank McBride vs. O'Dell Riley, [5], 170.
Joe Dotey vs. Wayne Fidler, [4], 140.
Bert Ardt vs. Andy Canal, [4], 135.
Jack Whitinghill vs. Leif Erickson, [4], 155.

Johnny Paycheck, 1933 Chicagoland Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, who was knocked out by Altus Allen and Joe Louis in his last two appearances, will make a comeback in a 10 round bout against Selman Martin of Chicago in Hammond Civic center tonight. George Dixon II., south side lightweight, is paired with Gene Spencer of South Chicago in a secondary feature. Other matches, each set for four rounds, will bring together Bill Petersen, Indiana Harbor heavyweight, and Julius Glenn; Bill Reardon, Oak Park lightweight, and Joe Dupont; Mike Sopko, Indiana Harbor middleweight, and Johnny Rhodes, and Jackie Brussel, St. Louis featherweight, and Vito Rizzo.

Abie Coleman, New York heavyweight wrestler, will be in quest of his fourth straight Chicago victory against Pete Schu of Argo in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, this evening. . . . Davey Day will open boxing drills in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon for a 10 round contest against Billy Marquart in the Coliseum Feb. 3. . . . Contrary to popular belief, Johnny Behr doesn't believe he will be appointed a member of the Illinois boxing commission by Gov. Dwight Green. Other candidates for the post include Ed Hintz, Chicago banker, who is a veteran judge of Golden Gloves fights, and Paul Prehn, former middleweight wrestler, who owns a restaurant in Champaign. Sheldon Clark, Republican member of the present commission, likely will be retained. Chairman Joe Triner also may be held over as Democratic representative on the incoming commission, which is not expected to be named until after Jan. 28. Jack Elder is in line for the secretaryship, a position now held by Barney Ross.

NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE RENEWS A. A. AGREEMENT

Gottselig to Lead Hawks' Kansas City Farm.

Efforts of the new régime in the American association to place minor league hockey on a sounder business basis were endorsed and furthered by the National Hockey league in a meeting in the Bismarck hotel yesterday when the major organization granted the association's every request for a more practical working agreement. Frank J. Calder, president, and Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Blackhawks, representing the National league, accepted the association's proposal to renew the working agreement between the leagues for a one year period. The old agreement, drawn for five years, expired on Saturday.

Asked One Year Agreement.

George Higgins, president of the association, explained he and his directors asked a one year arrangement instead of a long term agreement because of their inexperience. The National league granted them leave to renew the agreement after a year.

The outstanding features of the new agreement are a $4,000 draft clause and a change in the minor league's reserve list to include only 18 men with two men on a negotiation list. Heretofore the minors were permitted only the reserve list with 20 men. Higgins pointed out that minor league clubs are unable to compete with the major league in scouting and signing new players. Under the negotiation list clause, the minors now will be able to conduct negotiations with two amateurs without interference from the National league.

Curb Draft Powers.

National league teams now can draft any player from the minors for an established price of $4,000, but here again the National league moved to protect the minors by inserting an alternating clause, which specifies that, for instance, if a player is drawn from a club in 1941, no other player can be taken from the team until 1943.

Higgins, who was accompanied by H. W. Peterson of St. Paul and Lyle Wright of Omaha, said a czar for hockey also was discussed at the meeting. The minors had proposed a czar or commissioner some time ago. Calder and McLaughlin agreed with the association representatives that there was need for one central head to decide disputes between leagues, and it was suggested that if a suitable man cannot be found, the leagues elect a committee to act as a court of final appeal.

Kansas City Gets Gottselig.

At the conclusion of the meeting, William Tobin, general manager of the Blackhawks announced the Hawks had completed a working agreement with the Kansas City club of the American association, thru which Kansas City becomes a Blackhawk farm for one year.

Johnny Gottselig, veteran Blackhawk forward, was sent to Kansas City to become general manager of the farm. If the arrangement works out, Tobin said, the agreement will be renewed for a longer term.

ZALE CAPTURES 100-MILE TITLE IN MIDGET RACES

Wally Zale of Chicago won the 100 lap midseason championship in the national indoor midget auto races in the International amphitheater last night. Zale started from the pole position and led all the way, winning in 16:52.

Bob Muhlke of Kenilworth was second, Harry Lewis of Chicago third, Tony Willman of Milwaukee fourth and Bert Knight of Chicago fifth. The race was stopped early when collisions sent cars spilling over the track, but it was resumed with the drivers restarting in the positions they held when given the red flag.

BANK LIFE INSURANCE.

Do you have some general information about the savings bank life insurance system in New York state? —T. M.

Answer: Savings banks in New York state were permitted to sell life insurance under a law enacted in 1938. First policies were issued in 1939. The system is similar to that set up in Massachusetts in 1907.

The life insurance contracts are sold by mutual savings banks over the counter. They cannot employ salesmen or collectors. Their insurance business is supervised by the state insurance department and they are required to maintain certain reserves with the state guaranty fund.

Under New York laws, savings banks can issue life insurance policies not exceeding $1,000 each, and annuity contracts providing for annual payments of not more than $200. The maximum life insurance which any one person can buy from the banks is $3,000. The policies can be sold only to New York residents.

Assets of the insurance departments of the savings banks are completely segregated from funds of the savings departments and may be applied only to pay liabilities incurred on the insurance business handled.

Eighteen mutual savings banks in New York state now offer life insurance. More than $11,500,000 of this type of insurance is in force in the state, represented by 14,000 policies.

Dividends [representing refunds of premiums available from savings on underwriting, investments and administrative expenses] are distributed to policyholders in the same manner as those paid on participating policies by regular life insurance companies.

For example, on a savings bank $1,000 straight life insurance policy, issued in 1940 to a person 35 years old for an annual premium of $23.96, the dividend this year would be $2.39 and the cash value of the policy at the end of the first year would be $12.88, according to the New York savings bank life insurance fund.

DEFENSE ORDERS.

Answer: The cumulative total of national defense contracts awarded the company is approximately $1,100,000,000.

ULTILITY LOAN BIDDING PLAN IS PROTESTED

A protest against a proposal to compel competitive bidding in the sale of new securities of public utility holding companies and their subsidiaries in certain cases was submitted to the Securities and Exchange commission yesterday by the Investment Bankers' association. The SEC's public utilities division made the proposal for forced competitive bidding.

"In operation, a compulsory competitive bidding requirement for public utility securities bringing with it a method of distribution which would eliminate the smaller dealers would injure the operation of the capital market," the brief said. "If small dealers are no longer included in selling groups, thousands of small investors, the clients of these dealers, will not have to opportunity to buy high quality investments."

NEW GRAIN BOARD HEAD WOULD END TRADE BARRIERS

Philip R. O'Brien, president elect of the Chicago Board of Trade, asserted yesterday that international trade barriers must be removed at the restoration of world peace to obtain permanent agricultural relief. He will take over the helm of the grain exchange today as its 63d president.

"Before the outbreak of the war," O'Brien said, "European consumers of bread were paying a price for restricted supplies of inferior home grown wheat three times as high as they would have paid for high quality American wheat. This condition could not have existed except that the functions of international grain markets were curtailed by tariffs, quotas, exchange regulations, and other barriers to trade."

Preferences of Newspaper Readers Will Be Discussed

Reading habits and preferences of newspaper readers will be the subject of a talk to be given tomorrow by Fred Dickinson, western manager of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers association. Dickinson will speak before the Chicago chapter of the American Marketing association at 6 p. m. at the Sportsman's club, 360 North Michigan avenue.

Int. Harvester Tractor Unit to Vote on Strike

Approximately 1,500 members of the United Farm Equipment Workers union, local 101, employed at the Chicago tractor works of the International Harvester company, 2600 West 31st street, decided yesterday to hold a strike vote Tuesday and Wednesday at union headquarters, 1110 South Oakley boulevard. Negotiations will be held with company officials today, however.

Gerald Fielde, national secretary-treasurer of the union, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said the question involved in the company-union dispute included recognition of the union as bargaining agent, substitution of hourly rates for piece work, and minimum wages of 75 cents hourly for men and 65 cents for women.

Others to Take Strike Vote.

Fielde said also that strike votes will be taken within a day or so at Harvester plants in Rock Falls, Milwaukee, Rock Island, and the two other plants here. He declared that the only acceptable settlement would be on a nation-wide basis. More than 20,000 workers would be involved if the plants went on strike, not including those already out on strike in the East Moline works of the company, he said.

Yesterday's meeting was held at Sokol hall, 2345 South Kedzie avenue. Representatives of both the independent and C. I. O. unions from the East Moline plant were present, and about $300 was raised for use in the Moline strike. Fielde said C. I. O. and independent union pickets at Moline were parading side by side.

END STEEL STRIKE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 19 (AP).—Leaders of the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing committee tonight ended a strike in the slab mill of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's $70,000,000 Irvin works. Philip Murray, chairman of the SWOC, and company officials have scheduled a conference for next Tuesday on the union contract.

STEEL MARKET ENTERS A MORE ORDERLY PHASE

Cleveland, O., Jan. 19 (AP).—The steel market has entered a more orderly phase, with consumers, realizing the impossibility of spot deliveries in the jammed industry, carefully examining their future requirements and placing orders as far ahead as the fourth quarter, the magazine Steel reported today.

"Incoming business is as large or even larger than before, but the situation seems calmer, as both producers and consumers are better adjusted to unusual conditions," the magazine said.

Frank Kearns, Treasurer of Butler Bros., Resigns

Frank J. Kearns, treasurer of Butler Brothers since 1935, has resigned, Frank S. Cunningham, chairman of the board of directors, announced yesterday. Cunningham said it was planned to elect the present controler, J. A. Donaldson, treasurer, at the regular meeting of the board Jan. 28. Donaldson will retain the position of controler.

KNUDSEN CALLS FOR ALL OUT AID FROM INDUSTRY

Seeks Use of Every Existing Machine.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19 (AP).—William S. Knudsen, director general of the office of production management, appealed today for an "all out performance of American ingenuity, backed by every machine and piece of equipment available," to supply the needs of the defense program.

In a letter to Walter D. Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, Knudsen urged industry to coöperate in supplying information for a national census of plants and equipment which the association and affiliated organizations comprising the National Industrial council are sponsoring.

Asks 100% Coöperation.

"I am counting, as I am sure you are," Knudsen wrote, "on every manufacturer and machine shop proprietor in the nation—no matter how large or small—considering it a patriotic duty to supply the information requested and I am confident that you will receive 100 per cent coöperation both from the largest and the smallest shops."

The inventory will be taken from Jan. 19 to 25, a period designated by the sponsors as "preparedness thru production week."

Questions to Be Asked.

In a statement making public the Knudsen letter, the association said the inventory would answer these questions, among others:

1. How many milling machines, gear cutting machines, lathes, etc., are being used part time or not at all?

2. What is the extent of our total facilities for receiving and shipping goods at manufacturing centers? Our total industrial railroad facilities? Total power generating resources at the plants?

3. How many skilled, semiskilled, and unskilled workers—male and female—does the nation have? How many shifts do they work in what number of plants? How many workers are being taught new skills thru company sponsored training programs?

Rustless Iron and Steel's 3 Month Profit $456,609

Rustless Iron and Steel corporation yesterday reported consolidated net earnings, after provisions for federal income and excess profits taxes were $456,609 for the three months ended Dec. 31, equal to 46 cents a share on the common stock. Earnings for 1940, before provisions for federal income and excess profits taxes, were $2,566,799.04, equal to $2.67 a common share.

JOBS AND PAY ROLLS IN ILLINOIS SHOW BIG UPTURN IN DECEMBER

Large increases in both employment and pay rolls in Illinois during December were reported yesterday by Martin Durkin, director of the Illinois department of labor.

The gains, shown in both manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries, continued the upward trend recorded for eight consecutive months. The indexes for December, 1940, were 14.5 per cent higher for employment and 21.3 per cent up for pay rolls, compared with the figures for April, 1940, when the current upward trend began.

The average weekly earnings for the 703,461 wage earners covered by the December reports were $28.60. This figure is 95 cents higher than the average for a slightly different group of wage earners for November, and 65 cents higher than the average for October.

AWARD OFFERED FOR PROMOTION OF ARBITRATION

Eugene F. Sitterley, head of Importers Guide, export trade journal, announced yesterday that an award would be presented to the corporation or business association adjudged as having made the most outstanding contribution to the use of arbitration in foreign trade during the year.

The magazine's award, in the form of a plaque, will be made during the spring under the auspices of the American Arbitration association, he said. Sitterley said that this will be the first award of its kind and that it would be made an annual event.

CASE HISTORY No. 30

How a Housewife Found Trained Household Help

Mrs. H. W. Schwartz, 5143 Greenwood avenue, wanted to hire someone for general housework. The Help Wanted ad she phoned to the Tribune pulled 147 replies from applicants, one of whom she hired.

No matter what kind of help you need, Tribune circulation, over 1,000,000 every day of the week, reaches workers of every kind. Carrying more Help Wanted advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, the Tribune is the long established employment market watched by competent workers in Chicago and thruout the Central States.

Phone your want ad as late as 5:30 p. m. and you can begin interviewing applicants when you get to your place of business in the morning. Call SUPerior 0100—Want Ad-Viser.

If you are a telephone subscriber, you may charge your want ads. Expert ad-writers are at your service.

Carry Your Own Checkbook

Carry your own checkbook — (or keep it at your home or office). Then you can write checks — to pay the landlord, the grocer, the gas company, or anyone. You can send money anywhere—in town, out of town—anytime. Just sit down and write a check.

Any amount starts a Checking Account

Any amount starts a regular personal checking account with the Industrial National Bank. You are the one to determine how much you want to keep on deposit — enough to cover checks you propose to draw, or an over plus, or extra balance if you choose.

We invite your Account

We invite your personal checking account (accounts may be subject to more than one authorized signature — husband and wife, for example). You may have a choice of attractive checkbooks with plenty of room on the "Stubs" to keep tab of where your money comes from and where it goes. A statement of your account is rendered every month, and your "Paid" checks are returned with your statement—canceled checks are a recognized receipt to prove that you have paid what you have paid.

The cost of having a checking account at the Industrial National Bank may be relatively small, or there may be no cost at all. We make liberal allowances based on the average balance maintained.
